Most Democrats Hostile to Investigation

House Shuns Proposal by Agnew

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agnew backers could circumvent Albert's decision by the House would not act "at this time" on a request from Vice President Spiro T. Agnew that the House, rather than the courts, undertake an investigation of allegations of wrongdoing against him.

Albert told reporters: "The vice president's letter (asking for the House hearing) relates to matters before the courts. In view of that fact, I as speaker will not take any action on the letter at this time."

Albert would not enlarge on his two sentence statement which followed a meeting with other House Democratic leaders.

The action killed, at least for the time being, any chance the leadership would allow an inquiry to start as requested by Agnew on Tuesday.

Agnew's decision by the House would not act "at this time" on a request from Vice President Spiro T. Agnew that the House, rather than the courts, undertake an investigation of allegations of wrongdoing against him.

Albert told reporters: "The vice president's letter (asking for the House hearing) relates to matters before the courts. In view of that fact, I as speaker will not take any action on the letter at this time."

Albert would not enlarge on his two sentence statement which followed a meeting with other House Democratic leaders.

The action killed, at least for the time being, any chance the leadership would allow an inquiry to start as requested by Agnew on Tuesday.

House would agree to Agnew's request.

"I can't believe they (the Democrats) are going to go along with it," he said. "They won't bail the vice president out of his predicament."

House GOP leader Gerald R. Ford, of Michigan, urged that Agnew's proposal be adopted.

"The vice president is being tried in the news media due to the many leaks concerning the charges against him," Ford said. "It would seem impossible that he could get a fair hearing in the courts under the circumstances. I therefore think the House should grant his request for a full investigation of the charges against him."

In other developments: The Washington Star-News Harlow denied that the White House reported in a copyright story that Lester Matz, a Maryland contractor, had told federal prosecutors he personally anything to interfere with an estimated Agnew's own decision in this. "It was purely a personal matter," Agnew became vice president.

Historic Request Shocks Congressional Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's historic request for a congressional investigation of the political corruption allegations against him was so unexpected that House leaders were caught flat-footed.

They didn't know immediately what to do with it.

Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford was the first of them to learn of Agnew's request when called to meet with President Nixon Tuesday afternoon.

Upon his return to the Capitol, Ford consulted with Republican Whip Leslie C. Arends of Illinois before giving a dozen reporters the first hint, shortly after 4 p.m., of what was coming.

The Republican leader said Vice President John C. Calhoun had asked the House to investigate similar charges against him in 1826. "My recollection is that he did clear himself," Ford said.

Moments earlier, Speaker Carl Albert had abruptly left the House chamber and hurried to his office across the corridor.

Word spread rapidly to the House floor and the press galleries above: "Agnew's in the speaker's office."

The corridor outside Albert's offices quickly became jammed with congressmen, newsmen and page boys hoping for an announcement. Inside, Albert and six House leaders were each given a three-page letter by Agnew in which he repeated Calhoun's argument that, since only the House can impeach officials, only it can investigate charges against them.

"I am confident that, like Vice President Calhoun," Agnew's letter said, "I shall be vindicated by the House."

Then he sat down in a high-backed upholstered white chair beside Albert's desk and answered questions for an hour.

The leaders decided to have Agnew's letter read to the House. And that, they said, was the only decision they were prepared to make until they had studied both Agnew's request and the Calhoun precedent.

"I don't know what we're going to do," Albert finally told a crowd of persistent reporters after the meeting.

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts answered the question with a question: "Is there any hurry?"

O'Neill said he personally didn't think the House should consider Agnew's case until the courts do.

"Actually, he is asking for an inquiry," O'Neill said. "We have the right to impeach, but I don't see our having an obligation to make an inquiry on his behalf."

Meanwhile, Agnew's request for a congressional probe of allegations against him was aimed at placing "his life, his career, and his standing" as an issue on trial, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said Tuesday night in Syracuse.

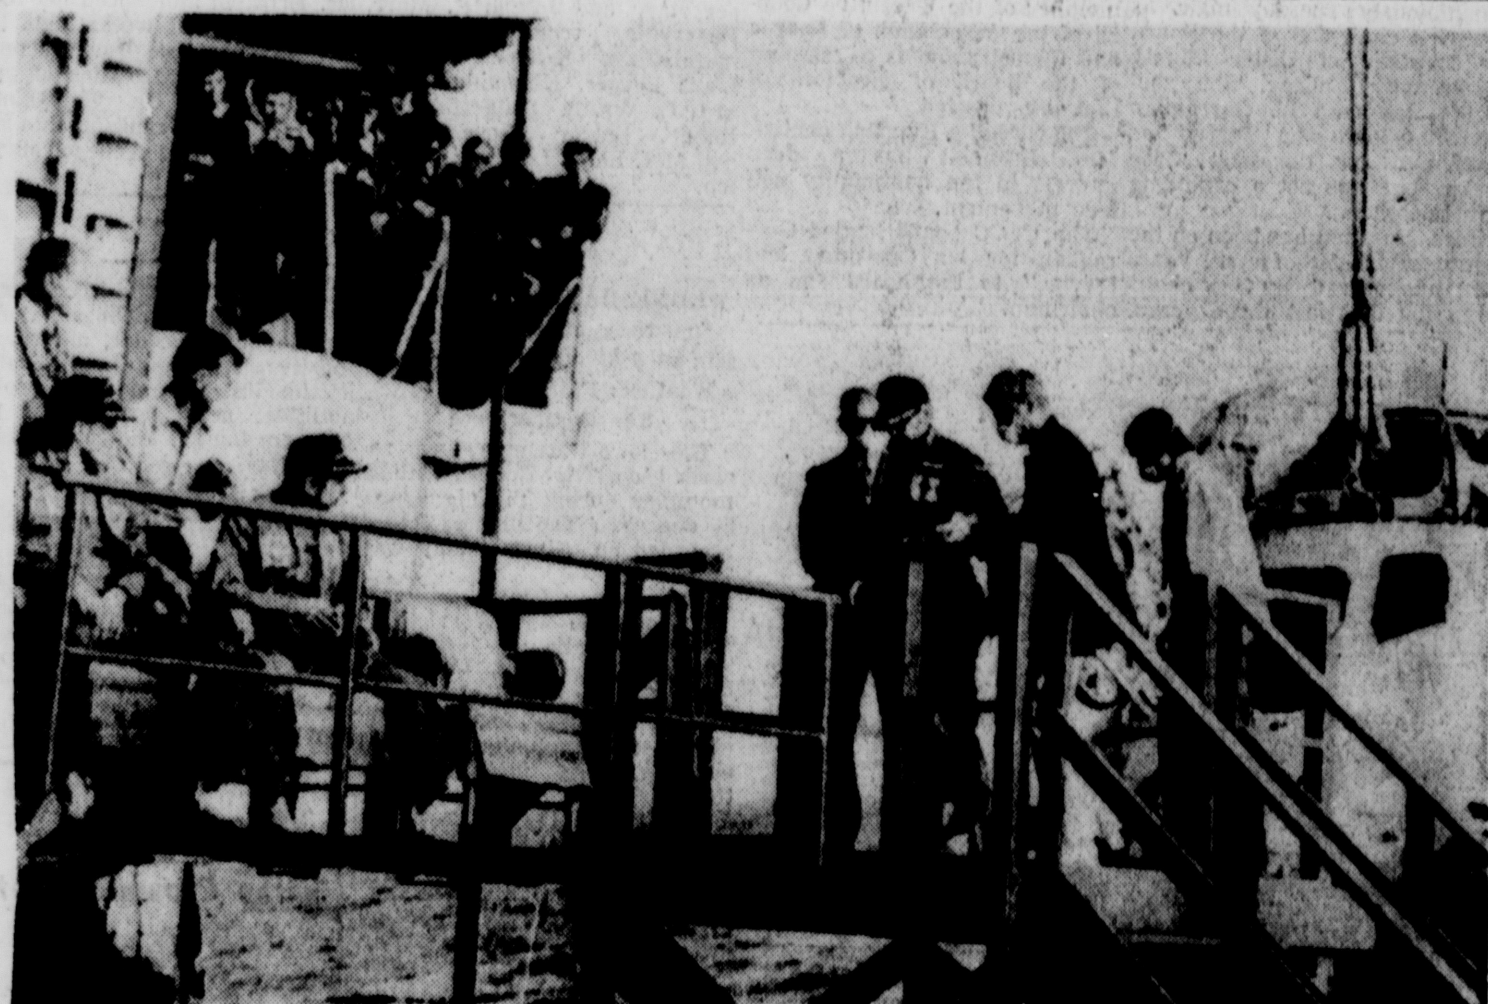

Javits said Agnew's letter, which asked the leadership of the House of Representatives for an investigation of allegations that Agnew was involved in a Maryland kickback scandal, offered the vice president certain advantages.

Javits, who called the letter "opting for 'the political route' instead of legal proceedings," said he thought Agnew would be better off in a congressional investigation where the rules of evidence did not confine the inquiry to "a single issue."

"In a congressional investigation, whether he is guilty or not guilty becomes an expanded canvas involving his life, his philosophy and his actions. I imagine he thinks his chances are better if the issue on which he is tried is the grave issue of his life, his career, and his standing," Javits told newsmen.

Javits, who said he was "no ardent supporter of the vice president," said he would not speculate on a possible Agnew successor, should the vice president be impeached, but added, "If you want to know who my favorite candidate is for the Republican presidential nomination in 1976, it's (Governor) Nelson Rockefeller."

Javits said an Agnew impeachment would be "a sad day for our country."

COMMANDER ARRIVES—Skylab flight commander Alan Bean (R) is assisted by NASA doctors as he walks toward a mobile platform on the USS New Orleans where fellow astronauts (L-R) Jack Lusma and Owen Garriott are already seated. The astronauts were transported immediately on the mobile platform to the Skylab Mobile Laboratories where they are presently undergoing extensive medical examinations following their record 59 days in space. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Skylab Crew Rests After Record Mission

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Doctors were elated with the physical conditions of the Skylab 2 astronauts today after their record 59 1/2-day space mission.

Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma planned to sleep late aboard the recovery carrier headed for San Diego, Calif.

The astronauts blazed back to earth Tuesday in a perfect ending to their journey. They splashed down six miles from the recovery ship which was waiting about 230 miles southwest of San Diego.

The three were quickly hoisted aboard the New Orleans with their precious cargo of films, tapes and other data which could provide vital information about the sun, the earth and man himself.

The astronauts walked a bit wobbly when they stepped on the carrier deck after their long exposure to space weightlessness.

Smiling and happy, they waved and saluted the hundreds of sailors who lined up for a look at the nation's newest space heroes.

They were quickly taken to a medical facility for extensive examinations.

A medical report said none of the spacemen suffered from motion sickness and all three had normal blood pressures and heart rates.

The report said there was some evidence of "vestibular disturbance," such as dizziness. But this was expected as part of the process of readapting to earth's gravity.

"All three crewmen are in excellent spirits and they feel well," said the report. "Physicians are very elated with the crew condition at this point."

Dr. Royce Hawkins, the chief astronaut physician, credited their good health to a rigid exercise program while they were in space.

The astronauts will be under careful medical scrutiny for another 18 days. They will maintain a strict diet and collect all urine and fecal samples for examination as they have done since 21 days before they were launched July 28.

More tests were planned aboard the New Orleans today and Thursday. On Thursday afternoon, the astronauts will fly back to their homes near Houston's Johnson Space Center.

Within an hour after the astronauts were aboard the carrier Tuesday, they talked with their families and received a message of congratulations from President Nixon.

Skylab 2's 24-million-mile journey had a safe and accurate ending, the trademark of U.S. space flights in recent years.

The Apollo ship ferrying the astronauts from the Skylab station dropped under orange and white parachutes into white-capped waves, within range of television cameras.

"Man, that was a spectacular entry!" said Lousma through a special communications hookup after the spacecraft was on the water. "I like the bang when the main chute comes out. Golly, I'd like to do it again!"

Now that their husbands have returned from a business trip that lasted nearly two months and covered some 24 million miles, the wives of the Skylab 2 astronauts say they're ready for a little togetherness.

"I'll be so happy to have him home. I won't even ask him to empty the garbage for a whole week," Helen Garriott said Tuesday as she watched the Skylab command craft splash down in the Pacific Ocean.

"I'd like to have him home for awhile," Mrs. Bean said. "I was thinking it's been a long three months and I'll be glad when he gets back Thursday night." The astronauts were in quarantine for a month before they began their two-month trip.

Asked if she would like her husband to retire from the space program, Mrs. Bean said: "I'd like for him to but I don't think he has that in mind."

Rosh Hashanah Rites Mark Jewish New Year

Rabbi Jonathon Eichhorn spiritual leader of Temple Emanuel, 243 Albany Avenue reads section of the sacred Torah Scrolls proclaiming the observance of Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish religious New Year which begins at sunset today. On the Torah table is the Shofar ram's horn, which was given by the State of Israel to Igor Stravinsky and which was later donated to the Temple by Robert Kraft, Stravinsky's protégé. The Torah crown and pointer were made by Kurt Matzdorf, internationally known Jewish silversmith. The Rosh Hashanah services starting tonight usher in the High Holy Days for Jewish people throughout the world. This is the year 5734 on the Jewish calendar. Vandalism at Greene Nuclear Site Labeled 'Sabotage' by Authorities

By MATT SPIRENG
CATSKILL

Public opposition to the possible construction of a nuclear power plant at one of two sites in Greene County has been evident since it was announced earlier this year that detailed site studies would begin, but now the opponents have turned to illegal means to get their point across — at least that's what the New York State Power Authority apparently thinks.

A representative of the Power Authority on Tuesday termed vandalism at a meteorological testing station as "sabotage."

The vandalism was discovered Monday afternoon when a technician went to take readings from equipment at the station near Athens.

The door at the station had been smashed in, state police said, and a sledge hammer was used on some of the equipment inside. No exact value estimate was immediately placed on the damage, although a spokesman for the Power Authority said it was thought damages could run at least several thousand dollars.

"The sabotage will not be permitted to disrupt the studies of our potential plant sites," John Lenney, liaison officer for the Power Authority in Catskill, said Tuesday.

Lenney said it is definitely felt that Monday's vandalism damage to equipment used for stemmed from public opposition hydrology studies on the Hudson to the proposed power plant.

Boyle Remains Critical

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former United Mine Workers president W. A. "Tony" Boyle was being kept alive today by mechanical devices in a Washington hospital following what his personal physician described as an apparent suicide attempt with an overdose of drugs.

Officials at George Washington University Hospital said Boyle's condition remained "critical."

Dr. Milton Gusack, Boyle's physician, said the 71-year-old of sodium amytal . . . taken by former union leader's chances of survival were "minimal."

Boyle was rushed to the hospital late Monday night only 10 hours before he was to appear in federal court on a government attempt to extradite him to Pittsburgh to face murder charges in the 1969 slaying of union insurgent Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski.

Hospital authorities first said Boyle had suffered a "possible stroke." But Gusack said in a mid-afternoon briefing: "Apparently this was not a stroke. It was due to a large overdose of sodium amytal . . . taken by Boyle."

Boyle was found by him, Pennsylvania authorities in the Supreme Court.

Boyle was free under $50,000 bond. He defeated Yablonski in a bitter union election in 1969, which was later ruled invalid. Boyle was later defeated by Arnold Miller in a court-ordered election.

Boyle also faced a 3-year term in the penalties totaling $180,000 on a conviction on charges of illegal funneling union money to charges of violating Yablonski's political candidates in 1968. He was appealing that conviction.

Saugerties Dems Speaker Silent, but

SAUGERTIES In her five years as a state assemblywoman and senator, Mary Ann Krupsak has campaigned loudly and vehemently for constructive legislative change. Some of that campaigning may have caught up with her Tuesday night; a severe case of laryngitis forced her to cancel a planned speaking engagement before the Saugerties Democratic Club.

But Ms. Krupsak sent a replacement: Veronica Meier, a Democratic candidate for the Albany County Legislature, an assistant to Democratic Assemblyman Daniel Haley of Massena and one of the leaders of a successful campaign two years ago to trim Gov. Rockefeller's proposed $8.5 billion state budget.

This year, Ms. Meier accomplished something no one had even tried before. She bucked the powerful Albany County Democratic machine, forced its candidate into a primary, and won.

But her brief address Tuesday night at the Sawyerkill Restaurant dealt more with politics at the state level. Echoing Ms. Krupsak's drive for legislative reform, she called for significant changes in legislative rules that, she maintained, make it virtually impossible for minority representatives to accomplish what they set out to do.

In 1972, she said, more than 9,000 bills were introduced in the state legislature; only 3,000 reached committee, 600 reached the floor of the assembly or senate, just 300 gained final passage. "A vast majority," continued Mrs. Meier, "were never considered." Many, she said, were sponsored by Democrats; others sponsored by Republicans; not necessarily in the good graces of the majority leadership.

Whether you're a Republican or Democrat in Albany," she added, "You must stand in with the people at the top. If you don't, you get nowhere." She said the state government is run exclusively by Governor Rockefeller, Assembly Speaker Duryea and Senate Ma-

sen. "They decide what passes the legislature," Mrs. Meier also suggested that sponsors should be allowed to defend or campaign for their bills while they're in committee. "Once a bill reaches committee, the sponsor doesn't hear anything about it until it reaches the floor. If it doesn't reach the floor, he knows it's been killed." "The minority party can't get anything passed; they have no say in what happens in this state, and that means that the people they are elected to represent have been disenfranchised. That has to change," she concluded.

New Chairman for UCCC Board

STONE RIDGE At one time she was chairman of the personnel committee and curriculum committee. She is a member of the Executive Council of the Association of Boards and Councils and is a member of the board of directors of that organization.

The wife of a Kingston dentist, Mrs. Bushnell has a deep interest in the community college movement.

The UCCC board lauded Garrahan for his "devotion and service" to the board and as chairman.

Other officers elected unanimously were George Rusk Jr., Milton, vice chairman; Dr. William J. Hagerty, New Paltz, secretary and Joseph F. Marr, Bearsville, treasurer. Other members of the board include: Louis Berger, Ellenville; Richard P. Smith, Saugerties; S. Robert Kelder, Stone Ridge and Mrs. Lloyd LeFever, Kingston.

The board also accepted with regret the resignation of college president, Dr. George B. Erbstein, effective Aug. 31, 1974. Dr. Erbstein announced his resignation several weeks ago.

The acceptance was accompanied by an expression of appreciation of Dr. Erbstein's efforts and accomplishments as president of the college since 1967.

Peron Aide Shot to Death

Strike in Argentina After Assassination

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Peron won a landslide victory for a third term as president. Argentine workers paralyzed the country with a nationwide strike today to protest the guerrilla slaying of Jose Rucci, the nation's top labor leader and a close advisor to President-elect Juan Domingo Peron.

The 5-million-member General Federation of Workers, an umbrella labor organization similar to America's AFL-CIO, called on workers throughout the nation to stay off their jobs from 6 p.m. Tuesday to midnight today.

The 30-hour walkout to protest the murder of the 48-year-old federation leader closed public transport, factories, government offices, schools, stores and air traffic across the nation of 25 million.

Rucci was gunned down Tuesday afternoon as he left his home in Buenos Aires. The slaying came two days after credit for three-year wave of kidnappings and political murders.

Iniguez, who took over Monday as police chief, issued a decree at his swearing in ceremony outlawing the ERP and vowed to wipe out the Marxist group.

"If anything happens to me, I want it to be very clear that it was the Trotskyites and Marxists," Rucci said in a recent interview. "All of us are threatened by the ERP, the enemies of Peron."

Police and witnesses said several of the gunmen hid in a vacant apartment adjoining Rucci's house and others took up posts on the roof of a school across the street.

The gunmen opened fire with automatic rifles and shotguns just as Rucci, preceded by bodyguards, stepped into a waiting car to keep an appointment for a television interview.

Rucci was the seventh top labor leader to be slain in Argentina since guerrillas gunned down metalworkers chief Augusto Vandor, then the most powerful union official in the country, in 1969.

The armed forces overthrew Allende Sept. 11 after months of middle-class strikes preceding Allende's ouster.

"We will have to tighten our belts and I will be among the first to do so," Pinochet said.

Eight Americans were reported among 5,630 persons de-

Released inmates said they also saw the Rev. Charles Welsh, a Holy Cross priest from Masillon, Ohio, in the stadium.

Two other Americans reported to have been in Santiago at the time of the coup have not contacted the embassy. American diplomats identified the two as Charles Edmund Horman and David Hathaway, Charles Fisk and Carol Nezzo, addresses unknown.

Desert Metropolis Envisioned by Dayan

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Defense Minister Moshe Dayan called Tuesday for the creation of a desert metropolis of hundreds of thousands of Jews in the occupied Sinai Peninsula seized by Israel in the 1967 Middle East War.

Dayan told 'desert settlers' in the Sinai he envisioned the Israeli port city would someday outstrip in population the nearby Gaza Strip, which has 370,000 Arab residents.

The national radio station said Dayan spoke of the proposed desert city in a speech to Jewish immigrant families from the Soviet Union settling on the proposed site.

Dayan called the city Yamit and said it could serve as a "strategic buffer zone" between Israel and the Gaza Strip. He said he hoped the city would have hundreds of thousands of Jews living in it by the end of the century.

The government officially has announced plans to establish an "administrative center" of 800 families on the site by 1975, but has made no commitment so far to build a large city along the dimensions proposed by Dayan.

Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir and Commerce and Industry Minister Haim Bar-Lev have expressed opposition to the project on economic and political grounds.

In a related development, members of six leftwing kibbutzim (collective farms) south of the Gaza Strip accused the armed forces of accidentally desecrating a Moslem cemetery in evicting at least 3,000 Bedouin from the northeastern Sinai.

Yossi Amitai, one of the protesters, told a Tel Aviv news conference a road-building bulldozer tore up the cemetery. He said the army was clearing the Bedouin off 9,000 acres of land as part of an overall program to ready 200,000 acres there for Jewish settlement.

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Guerrillas battled government troops on three fronts around Phnom Penh today, marring the start of annual ceremonies in the capital to honor the nation's war dead.

The military command reported heavy fighting northeast and northwest of Phnom Penh, but said the worst battle broke out only seven miles south of the city at Dei Kraham on Route 38.

The command said the fighting at Dei Kraham, near the intersection of Highways 2 and 3, began Tuesday night and spilled over into today. Artillery supporting the government soldiers shook the capital throughout the night.

The command reported intense fighting at Vihear Suor, 12 miles northeast of the capital. A spokesman said a besieged government garrison at Vihear Suor repulsed a rebel attack Tuesday night, killing two insurgents and wounding five others.

To the northwest, however, government troops were trying to stem insurgent infiltrators heading down Highway 5 toward the capital. The road was just north of the town of Sla Lekpra, 27 miles from Phnom Penh. Field reports said rebels had moved down the flanks of the highway and surrounded the town on three sides.

Inside Phnom Penh, Cambodians began celebrating Prachum Ben, a three-day holiday to honor soldiers and civilians slain in the war.

BELFAST (UPI) — Militants attached a bomb to the bottom of a policeman's car in Northern Ireland today following a shootout between gunmen and British troops.

A police spokesman said the Royal Ulster Constabulary officer and his wife "miraculously" escaped injury when the bomb's detonator failed to set off six attached sticks of dynamite.

Authorities said the militants attached the bomb underneath the off-duty officer's car while he was with his wife in a pub in Newry, a border town 50 miles south of Belfast. When the couple were driving home from the pub the officer heard a bang beneath his auto.

Authorities said the policemen looked under the car when he got home and found the dynamite sticks. They said the detonator had gone off but failed to ignite the dynamite.

The attempted bombing came hours after a group of gunmen opened fire on a British army patrol in the Roman Catholic Lower Falls area of Belfast. An army spokesman said the troops returned fire, but there were no reported casualties on either side.

Dutchess Town Officials Discuss Zoning Problem

By TIM SCHUSTER

MILAN

A spirit of cooperation was much in evidence Tuesday night at the Milan Town Hall as officials from four towns and three villages in Northern Dutchess County met to address a common problem — the place of planned developments in zoning.

The same municipalities had spent countless hours in the late 1960s to put their zoning laws into existence with the help of the same professional planning firm, and it was the first time since initial probings into zoning that they gathered together with a common purpose.

The advent of two large planned development applications in the Town of Rhinebeck, following the defeat of a large district in the Town of Red Hook three years ago, was a spur to action.

And the ostensible result of the good natured gathering was an unofficial promise from elected officials representing the municipalities that they would share their knowledge and findings on zoning with each other through the use of liaison committees.

A definite frame of mind about developers was obvious from most of the 50 persons who came to talk and listen. Phrases such as "danger," "threat," "crash it down our throats," and "God forbid" were heard repeatedly when speaking of large developments.

The villages of Red Hook, Rhinebeck, and Tivoli have no provision in their zoning laws for planned developments, but speakers from those villages pointed out that they would be impacted by any nearby major growth.

Mayor Peter Sipperley, Rhinebeck, stated unequivocally, "I would like to see PUD out entirely."

He said that there are many areas remaining in Rhinebeck that are potential sites for large developments, pointing to property of "several hundred acres" abutting on Sepasco Village on Route 308.

It was contended by some that the Weingarten proposal in Rhinebeck of some 1,600 acres was unique, but a Milan representative stated that All American Sports City development in Milan and Pine Plains had about 1,700 acres.

Concerning the Weingarten property, largely located in a prime area near the juncture of Routes 9 and 9G, Dutchess County Deputy Commissioner of Planning Kenneth Toole stated, "One way or another, it is going to be developed."

Some agreement was reached that perhaps PUDs could be limited in density to the density allowed in its specific location by the general zoning law.

Toole counseled, "We should consider PUDs in relation to the comprehensive plans. We can restrict the location (because of natural drainage and water supply) and could consider a ceiling on the size."

The size of some of the proposals has local planners worried. "It is a frightening prospect to have to deal with these plans with a lay board with a lack of technical skills," commented Toole.

The county planner also emphasized, "You should be asking the developer to come into your town on your terms. He is asking a favor of you."

Claude Potts, Tivoli, and Eleanor Close, Rhinebeck, both expressed the opinion that the recent reassessment by a professional firm in Dutchess County was partly responsible for many land sales, and rising taxes were forcing large land holders to sell.

Toole, in answer to a question, stated that building moratoriums of varying lengths have been upheld by the courts, depending upon what work had to be done.

Rhinebeck's moratorium of 90 days, already in progress, may be extended, said Supervisor William Allen. He noted that a citizens' committee is diligently studying the place of the PUD in his town, and offered to share the group's findings with the other municipalities. "Density seems to be the big bind," he added.

In 1968, as part of the business of organizing zoning laws and the Northern Dutchess area's comprehensive plans, a survey was taken.

One result was that 83 per cent of those responding said they preferred the area remain essentially rural in atmosphere.

It appears that a fight to preserve that character has been joined, and the selected representatives have chosen to side with the majority of the electorate on that point.

City Schools Trial Program

KINGSTON

The Kingston Consolidated School District today announced a "trial program" for the ninth period at the city's three junior high schools that gives students a choice of several options they may take for the period.

Previously, students had one of two choices for ninth period activity: they could participate in an approved activity or school club, or report to home-room and await the end of the school day. Additional alternatives were demanded by the Kingston Teachers Association during negotiations for the current teachers' contract.

Announcement of the trial program came in the form of a letter sent to each parent today by Superintendent of Schools Louis A. Salzmann. That letter stated:

"Effective October 1, 1973, a new procedure approved by the Board of Education will be instituted in the Myron J. Michael Junior High School, the M. Clifford Miller Junior High School and the J. Watson Bailey Junior High School concerning the ninth period. This period of the school day begins at 2:40 p.m. and extends to 3:15 p.m. From 2:40 p.m. until 3:15 p.m., all students will have the option of:

- participating in a school activity,
- reporting to a teacher for extra instructional help or makeup or previously missed schoolwork,
- reporting to an area for quiet study,
- walking home,
- freedom to leave the building, but the obligation of returning to meet the bus is the responsibility of the student.

"The existing bus schedule will not be altered in any way from its present form, allowing all students to select either option 1, 2, 3, or 5. Students have been informed by their principals of the options which are available to them. Each was encouraged to take advantage of that option which would be of most benefit to him. In addition, the principals have discussed with the student body the operational procedures which are concerned with the safety and welfare of the students.

"I would ask the cooperation of parents, administrators, teachers and students in the implementing of this trial program."

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 26, 1973

By JACK ANDERSON

LAS VEGAS — Senate sleuths are investigating two $50,000 contributions to President Nixon from billionaire Howard Hughes. The money was handed over in cash to the President's friend, Bebe Rebozo, in 1969 and 1970.

Although Hughes' aides described the $100,000 as a "campaign contribution," the President wasn't running for office in 1969 or 1970. The Senate Watergate Committee is investigating reports that the money may have been diverted to the President's personal use.

This is vigorously denied by White House spokesman Gerard Warren, who said: "The President never received any such money."

Rebozo refused to comment on the charges. Sources close to him, however, stated that neither he nor the President have ever used campaign money for personal purposes.

We first reported on August 6, 1971, that Hughes' aides "shipped off $100,000 from the Silver Slipper, a Hughes gambling emporium, for Nixon's campaign. The money was delivered by Richard Danner, a Hughes exec. to Bebe Rebozo, a Nixon confidant."

STARTED IN '69
Watergate investigators have now verified our story from some of the principals.

The payments to Nixon, the probers have been told, began in late 1969 at a time when Hughes was consolidating his hotel-casino empire in Nevada. His private papers, which have been made available to us, show he was trying to overcome resistance from the Justice Department's antitrust division.

The first $50,000 was slipped to Rebozo in late 1969 not long after the President personally approved Hughes' purchase of the airline, Air West. The money was delivered by Hughes' hotelman Dick Danner to Rebozo, the Senate investigators have been told.

The second $50,000 contribution was made in the summer of 1970 when Hughes became the largest casino operator in the world with the purchase of Harrold's Club in Nevada. Again, it was Danner who passed the money to Rebozo. But this time, another Hughes factotum, Robert Maheu, witnessed the transaction. We have learned that Maheu spoke candidly to the committee about the deal.

Witnesses have told the Watergate investigators that the $100,000 positively was intended for Nixon, not Rebozo. What the President did with the money, if he received it, remains a mystery.

In 1969 and 1970, he was completing the purchase of his San Clemente estate. Both Rebozo and another Nixon crony, aerosol king Robert Abplanalp, participated in the acquisition.

The financial details were handled by the President's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, who has denied that any campaign contributions were used.

FOOTNOTE: More than a decade earlier, then-Vice President Nixon was hit by a blast of bad publicity over a $205,000 loan, which his brother Donald received from the same Howard Hughes. The loan was secured by a mortgage on a Whittier, Calif., lot that cost $13,000. The loan was never repaid.

PAINFUL PILGRIMAGE: Families of American servicemen missing in action in Indochina are planning a painful pilgrimage to Laos for news of their 400 unforgotten loved ones.

The relatives hope to set up a "mercy vigil" at the Vientiane talks between the Communist Pathet Lao and the royal government. In an initial agreement, the two sides agreed to repatriate all prisoners and to pass on information about all missing men.

This stirred a breath of hope here at the National League of Families which is still seeking to learn the fate of the 1,300 men missing in Indochina, some 400 of them in or near Laos.

In recent days, the league's energetic head, Iris Powers, and executive director, retired Air Force Col. Scott Albright, both of whom have sons missing, have been contacting members of families who, like themselves, still are torn between hope and resignation.

"A show of numbers may produce some shred of information," Albright a chipper but sad-eyed man told us. "We hope to fill every hotel room in Vientiane during the talks."

An American military team has already been organized in Thailand and only awaits permission from the Communists to scour the jungles and mountains for news. Impractical as it sounds, several grey-haired mothers have begged to go from village to village in the treacherous terrain in quest of word on their sons' fates.

FOOTNOTE: The National League of Families, all but forgotten now that it has won the fight to get the living home from Vietnam, is so broke that it depends almost entirely on voluntary help and the kindness of the American Legion which gives them rent-free office space.

$2 Million the Goal

Robert Strauss, the Democratic national chairman, went all out with his national telethon. He spent $1 million for television time on 225 National Broadcasting Company stations. Then he spent another $1 million for telephones, printing and other expenses. The telethon had to raise at least $2 million to break even.

"The most massive undertaking of any political party," Strauss called it. The telethon originated in Burbank, Calif. It was broadcast in nine cities. It ran seven hours, with top Democrats and prominent entertainers performing.

Strauss hopes to raise several million dollars. Half the proceeds go to the Democratic National Committee to pay off its 1968 debt and, hopefully, start a war chest for the 1974 and 1976 elections. And 25 per cent each will go to the state and county committees where the money is pledged.

The Democrats have the advantage of starting early to fund their mid-term and 1976 election unburdened by Watergate. The Republicans will have to start their efforts soon. There is a hard fight for the House seats and a third of the Senate next year. It is too early to prove that it was not the party, but a few misguided zealots who besmirched it.

Soviet Challenged

The National Academy of Sciences has been stung to challenge the Soviet Union that the arrest or further harassment of Andrew D. Sakharov, the father of the Soviet hydrogen bomb, who is a member both of the American and the Soviet academies of science, could lead to a curtailment of American scientific and technological cooperation.

American science was backed by Representative Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, who said he would oppose liberalization of trade with the Russians "if the price is to be paid by the martyrdom" of political dissidents such as Sakharov and Alexandr I. Solzhenitsyn. Mills threat could mean the end of trade liberalization, which the Soviet needs for greater trade with this country, such as another vast grain deal.

At the same time, the determination of the North Atlantic Treaty countries to negotiate free movement of people, ideas and information across the Iron Curtain is firm by the harassment of Sakharov and Solzhenitsyn.

NATO and the neutrals who support its views feel that for once the West has its finger on a Soviet pressure point—the desire for Western technological help, and they are listening to Sakharov's warning not to give it unless there is more democratization in the Soviet Union. Some nations are ready to end the whole security conference if it becomes clear that the Soviet are not fulfilling their promise to negotiate seriously on the issue of free movement.

Perhaps the combination of the U. S. Academy, the House Ways and Means Committee and NATO and the European neutrals who cooperate with it on free movement will convince the Soviet that this is an issue it cannot ignore any longer. It is now clear that the cold war will continue up to the day when there is free flow of information, ideas and people—people like Sakharov and Solzhenitsyn—between East and West.

A Noteworthy Assist

Not since John Foster Dulles as Secretary of State turned down Egypt's plea for the United States to help build the high Aswan Dam has any American, in government or private sector, offered significant aid to Arab nations. That is why the announcement that the First National City Corporation was prepared to invest $1 billion to assist economic development in the Middle East is so noteworthy.

The offer was made by G. Costanzo, executive vice president of the holding company which includes the nation's second largest bank, the First National City, while he was in Lebanon, the Switzerland of the Middle East.

Costanzo, who is in charge of his company's financial operations, said he had no fixed ideas concerning how the money might be apportioned. "We see tremendous possibilities in this part of the world, and we would like to work with the nations of this area to help achieve that potential," he said. "We have broad capabilities but the Middle Eastern nations themselves know best what their priorities should be."

BERRY'S WORLD

"What do you mean — 'separate checks' I want to be liberated, but not THAT liberated."

When Mom and Dad were young...

Rodgers and Hammerstein had a solid hit in "South Pacific," and were composing something they called "Anna and the King of Siam." Joe Louis was beaten in 15 rounds by Ezzard Charles.

A New York couple were listening to a radio hit, "The Lone Ranger," when 12 FBI men walked in and arrested Julius and Ethel Rosenberg as spies. The President defied scientific opinion and ordered the U.S. to devise the first hydrogen bomb. The Defense Budget was high — $14,200,000,000.

The coal miners won a raise to $14.75 a day. Fashion decreed a hemline at mid-calf and ladies were told that long hair was "in." A $5 bag of groceries jumped, from 1939 to 1950, to $9.83. There was so much food that the government was paying farmers $11 million a day to stop planting. The U.S. had sufficient corn and wheat to fill a train 12,000 miles long.

A woman's club in Dallas voted to ask General Dwight D. Eisenhower to run for President. Millions of home owners were building cellar bomb shelters. The Establishment called itself the "Fair Deal." The U.S. began to fight in Korea. This started a trend: it was not a war; it was a "police action." President Harry Truman fired General Douglas A. MacArthur.

America — always in need of a special fear — chose Communism. U.S. prosecutor Tom Murphy found he could not convict Alger Hiss for being a Red, so he tried him for perjury. Senator Joseph McCarthy opened committee hearings which destroyed reputations by innuendo. Clark Gable, 48, married Lady Sylvia Ashley, 39. Edgar Rice Burroughs, 74, creator of "Tarzan," died at Encino, Cal. An unknown called Ho

Chi Minh completed three years of indecisive civil war in Indochina. On TV, two top shows were "Howdy Doody" and "Lucky Pup." Two slick young Congressmen, John F. Kennedy and Richard Nixon, vied for headlines.

Klaus Fuchs, German physicist, stood in London's Old Bailey to be sentenced for giving the H-bomb to the Soviet Union. "Jelly Roll Morton," daddy of the hot piano in New Orleans, wrote a book. A half-carat diamond was embedded in his teeth. Good music was being conducted by Walter Damrosch and Arturo Toscanini.

Millions were singing "Good Night Irene." Over 42,000 Americans were infected by poliomyelitis. A chunk of Indiana soil yielded an antibiotic called Terramycin. Mayo Clinic announced that young women weep better and longer than men. After age 60, the men are champs.

The first kidney transplant was achieved on Ruth Tucker, 44, in Chicago. TV manufacturers switched from a round picture to rectangular. Henry J. Kaiser offered $200,000 for a name for his new automobile. Mrs. Charles Atkinson of Denver won with "Henry J." In June 1950, the Dow-Jones average peaked at 222.57.

In New York, a new beetle-shaped car appeared. It had originally been approved by Adolf Hitler and was called Volkswagen. Gregory Peck starred in "Twelve O'Clock High." Orson Wells had a hit, "The Third Man." Ingrid Bergman had a baby in Italy. The ukulele was phased out at house parties.

Walt Disney made his first movie with live actors: "Treasure Island." Declining actress Gloria Swanson played a declining actress in "Sunset Boulevard." On June 12, 1950, the U.S. Supreme Court ordered U. of Texas to admit a Negro. Joyce Matthews, 29, divorced Milton Berle, 41.

Eric Blair died; he wrote under the name of George

Orwell. Book critics said the best novelists were Arthur Koestler, Ignazio Silone, Andre Gide and Richard Wright. Arthur Murray taught dancing in a hurry — especially the Cha-cha.

The "Permissive Age" and Dr. Spock flowered at the same time. The smash hit of fat books was "The Cardinal." Palatial ocean liners — the Queen Elizabeth and the United States — raced each other across the Atlantic. Motor companies stultified sex by taking the rumble seat from the coupe. Puerto Rican assassins attempted to kill Truman at Blair House.

In higher education, students were eating live goldfish. The popular weekly magazines — "Collier's," "Liberty," and "Saturday Evening Post" — began to go down the drain. The President had a sign on his desk: "Please don't shoot the piano player; he's trying."

Inside Report

No Bus Compromise

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — An attempt by six gifted Congressmen to head off emotionally charged antibusing legislation by promoting a compromise has been shattered by inflexible civil rights leaders.

The bipartisan, biracial coalition of six house members has been virtually disbanded less than two months after its formation, diminishing any hope for a middle ground. Rather, prospects are that the House next month will pass a tough antibusing amendment to the school aid bill in the closing days of the current session.

In the absence of compromises, an antibusing bill — or perhaps even a constitutional amendment — may clear both Houses of Congress sooner or later.

To realistic proponents of high quality, racially integrated education, such an outcome would be tragic. That is why there is melancholy among them over the apparent message of the last few weeks: this is not time for moderation.

The first serious attempt at compromising the school busing issue came last year when two highly regarded Democratic Congressmen, Richardson Preyer of North Carolina, a Southern moderate, and Morris Udall of Arizona, a Western liberal — introduced compromise legislation. The bill, drafted by Prof. Alexander M. Bickel of Yale law school, seeks gradual integration in local schools without court-ordered busing and with a minimum of federal coercion. The reaction: mostly yawns.

With another White House-supported effort to abolish busing coming up to Congress, Udall and Preyer tried this past summer to generate interest in their bill. Consequently, they sought out two prestigious Republican moderates with good civil rights records: John Anderson of Illinois and Albert Quie of Minnesota. More important, they went to the swelling Black Caucus for help.

Two freshman black Congressmen considered less dogmatic than their senior colleagues — Georgia's Andrew Young, a onetime lieutenant of Martin Luther King, and Texas's Barbara Jordan, a former state senator — were asked to join in seeking a compromise. Without committing themselves to the Preyer-Udall bill, they agreed.

The result was a July 31 statement signed by the six Congressmen. While opposing antibusing legislation and supporting "the objectives of integration," the statement asserted that "the nation's educational problems... are continually inflamed by court-ordered busing" and complained about "disruptive judicial interference." Behind that statement was the promise of Republican moderates, liberal Democrats and black Democrats joining in a new civil rights coalition.

But doughty civil rights lobbyist Clarence Mitchell of the NAACP saw no such promise. Whatever the purpose of the July 31 press conference, he telegraphed the six Congressmen. "It is difficult to conceive of anything that could create greater mischief." Furthermore, Mitchell thundered, the statement "is clearly designed to undermine court decisions."

On Aug. 2, Udall fired back a letter to Mitchell:

"I strongly and sincerely believe that your strategy keeps us locked in the same old trenches with a deteriorating legislative situation each year." Without compromise, Udall warned, Democratic congressmen from Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York may join their colleagues from Michigan in the antibusing camp.

The next weekend, Rep. Young invited distinguished civil rights leaders to Arlie House at Warrenton, Va., to try to talk out the problem. The experiment failed.

Udall began on Friday night by warning, as he had in his letter to Mitchell, that it was fine to take a hard civil rights line when pro-integration forces had 260 votes in the 435-member House in the early 1960s. Now, he said, the civil rights vote against antibusing legislation is 130 votes — and fading.

His listeners were unimpressed. Dr. Kenneth Clark, the distinguished black psychologist from City University of New York, replied coldly that he would rely on the courts and not interfere with them. He was seconded by Joseph Rauh, the veteran white civil rights leader. On Saturday, Young received much more of the same.

Junior black politicians such as Young and Miss Jordan are properly reverent about the distinguished role played by Kenneth Clark and Clarence Mitchell in the great civil rights triumphs in the courts and Congress. They are not prepared to clash head-on with them. In effect, Young and Miss Jordan have left the newly formed coalition.

In fact, Udall fears that the coalition has been aborted. To build a congressional majority for a moderate integration program, support from the civil rights lobby is essential. Refusal to give that support invites regressive legislation which would end busing without providing a less obnoxious alternative.

A Reflection on Good Old Days

When Mom and Dad were young...

Rodgers and Hammerstein had a solid hit in "South Pacific," and were composing something they called "Anna and the King of Siam." Joe Louis was beaten in 15 rounds by Ezzard Charles.

A New York couple were listening to a radio hit, "The Lone Ranger," when 12 FBI men walked in and arrested Julius and Ethel Rosenberg as spies. The President defied scientific opinion and ordered the U.S. to devise the first hydrogen bomb. The Defense Budget was high — $14,200,000,000.

The coal miners won a raise to $14.75 a day. Fashion decreed a hemline at mid-calf and ladies were told that long hair was "in." A $5 bag of groceries jumped, from 1939 to 1950, to $9.83. There was so much food that the government was paying farmers $11 million a day to stop planting. The U.S. had sufficient corn and wheat to fill a train 12,000 miles long.

A woman's club in Dallas voted to ask General Dwight D. Eisenhower to run for President. Millions of home owners were building cellar bomb shelters. The Establishment called itself the "Fair Deal." The U.S. began to fight in Korea. This started a trend: it was not a war; it was a "police action." President Harry Truman fired General Douglas A. MacArthur.

America — always in need of a special fear — chose Communism. U.S. prosecutor Tom Murphy found he could not convict Alger Hiss for being a Red, so he tried him for perjury. Senator Joseph McCarthy opened committee hearings which destroyed reputations by innuendo. Clark Gable, 48, married Lady Sylvia Ashley, 39. Edgar Rice Burroughs, 74, creator of "Tarzan," died at Encino, Cal. An unknown called Ho

Chi Minh completed three years of indecisive civil war in Indochina. On TV, two top shows were "Howdy Doody" and "Lucky Pup." Two slick young Congressmen, John F. Kennedy and Richard Nixon, vied for headlines.

Klaus Fuchs, German physicist, stood in London's Old Bailey to be sentenced for giving the H-bomb to the Soviet Union. "Jelly Roll Morton," daddy of the hot piano in New Orleans, wrote a book. A half-carat diamond was embedded in his teeth. Good music was being conducted by Walter Damrosch and Arturo Toscanini.

Millions were singing "Good Night Irene." Over 42,000 Americans were infected by poliomyelitis. A chunk of Indiana soil yielded an antibiotic called Terramycin. Mayo Clinic announced that young women weep better and longer than men. After age 60, the men are champs.

The first kidney transplant was achieved on Ruth Tucker, 44, in Chicago. TV manufacturers switched from a round picture to rectangular. Henry J. Kaiser offered $200,000 for a name for his new automobile. Mrs. Charles Atkinson of Denver won with "Henry J." In June 1950, the Dow-Jones average peaked at 222.57.

In New York, a new beetle-shaped car appeared. It had originally been approved by Adolf Hitler and was called Volkswagen. Gregory Peck starred in "Twelve O'Clock High." Orson Wells had a hit, "The Third Man." Ingrid Bergman had a baby in Italy. The ukulele was phased out at house parties.

Walt Disney made his first movie with live actors: "Treasure Island." Declining actress Gloria Swanson played a declining actress in "Sunset Boulevard." On June 12, 1950, the U.S. Supreme Court ordered U. of Texas to admit a Negro. Joyce Matthews, 29, divorced Milton Berle, 41.

Eric Blair died; he wrote under the name of George

Orwell. Book critics said the best novelists were Arthur Koestler, Ignazio Silone, Andre Gide and Richard Wright. Arthur Murray taught dancing in a hurry — especially the Cha-cha.

The "Permissive Age" and Dr. Spock flowered at the same time. The smash hit of fat books was "The Cardinal." Palatial ocean liners — the Queen Elizabeth and the United States — raced each other across the Atlantic. Motor companies stultified sex by taking the rumble seat from the coupe. Puerto Rican assassins attempted to kill Truman at Blair House.

In higher education, students were eating live goldfish. The popular weekly magazines — "Collier's," "Liberty," and "Saturday Evening Post" — began to go down the drain. The President had a sign on his desk: "Please don't shoot the piano player; he's trying."

Saugerties Supervisor Race

Dem Candidate Lists Proposals

SAUGERTIES' committee on matters relating to as the site for a permanent re-cycling depot for glass, be something of which we could be justly proud.

The Democratic candidate for Supervisor of the Town of Saugerties, Paul Miller, concluded his first week of campaigning with two additional proposals for action by the Town Board.

His first proposal, announced earlier, had been to call for a moratorium on all commercial and industrial building permits and all subdivisions until such time as the Town Master Plan was adopted. He now has followed this up with a request for closing down the village landfill area and permitting the village residents to use the town facility. And he concluded his first week of activity with a proposal for a watchdog com-

Regarding the Saugerties Village landfill, Miller said this was long overdue. "The proposal was made first at least two years ago," commented Miller, "but for some reason has never been acted on by the town board."

"The village site," Miller went on to say, "is located in a relatively congested area, and is not ideally situated and could be put to better use, with resulting benefits both in economy and efficiency to the taxpayers of Saugerties."

"I would suggest that the town board immediately investigate the possibility of using one part of the village facility communities have already established their depots, and this is just another instance of Saugerties falling behind in its priorities. We have a fine environmental Conservation Commission here in Saugerties and we owe it not only to them but to ourselves to see that they can carry forward their programs successfully."

"I would further suggest that the town board investigate the possibility of employing our handicapped or retarded citizens in the re-cycling depot. Experience in other communities has shown that this is practical; and it certainly would be something of which we could be justly proud."

"Incidentally, it is worth pointing out that although re-cycling is not at present profitable, economically, it does already contribute some income, and there is every reason to expect that it will contribute much more in the future."

"If Saugerties is to continue to be a forward-looking community, it must address itself to issues such as this," Miller said.

Regarding cable TV, Miller promised when elected to see that a watchdog committee was appointed to make certain that the townspeople are not short-changed on matters relating to cable television.

"I think the town board could have done a better job when the franchise came up for renewal," said Miller. "However, I don't see much point now in belaboring the mistakes that have already been made. Instead, I am suggesting that a citizens committee be set up that will review the important changes that have taken place in TV regulations during the past few years and make recommendations for improved future action by the town board."

"Most people don't realize it," Miller went on to say, "but the FCC regulations now oblige cable TV systems to provide a public access channel for the local community, free of charge. Think of what that means: important issues concerning town or county government, environmental and civic groups, public events, such as Old Timers Day, the Fourth of July Parade, and the Chrysanthemum Festival, could be put on the air."

Miller had this to say in conclusion: "Too often we hear town officials complaining about public apathy instead of doing something about it. And they forget that sometimes people can't get to a hearing at the town hall simply because they can't find a baby sitter or someone else is using the car that night. It isn't always apathy that keeps the public away but the lack of imagination on the part of the elected officials."

Miller is currently in the process of contacting those groups in Saugerties who would be interested in participating in community programming.

Right Now, as we approach the end of one quarter and the beginning of another, is the time for you to think about where your money is — and how much it earns for you.

Ellenville Project Accord Reached

By WADE BURKHART

ELLENVILLE. Agreement with Jobco Developers, of Great Neck, has been reached on the price of the Ellenville HUD-sponsored housing project, and construction could start within six weeks, according to Ellenville Housing Authority Chairman Gordon Kent.

The price agreed upon was $1.9 million for the 70-unit project Kent said Tuesday. The project is being built on two separate parcels: 40 units of low rent family housing are to be put up on a site on Eastwood Avenue, and 30 units of low-rent senior citizen housing will be erected on the old American Legion property between Canal and Center Streets.

What is holding the construction start up was the need to get the American Legion property, part of the Ellenville Urban Renewal Project, cleared and sold to the developer. The Urban Renewal Agency has advertised for bids for the demolition of the buildings on the property. The bids are to be opened Oct. 10; but the agency can hold them up to 30 days before awarding them to check specifications and subject them to engineering review.

Kent said the occupancy of the housing units will likely be in late 1974, and that the housing authority would be taking applications from qualified prospective tenants during the summer of 1974.

There is a possibility that the developer could begin on the Eastwood Avenue site first, Kent said, but the developer was reluctant to do it since it would mean extra expense for him, and Kent said it could delay the completion of the project.

The meeting at which the price agreement was reached was held last week in New York City, Kent said, with Kent, HUD officials, and representatives of Jobco all present.

In addition to the price agreement, Kent said, the Ellenville Housing Authority received HUD approval for administration funds during the building of the project, and a special allocation to train some minority employees during the construction of the project.

The administration funds will provide for an architect and other consulting requirements, Kent said. He said the minority employees would be trained in the construction trades.

Kent said the total cost of the project was expected to exceed $2 million.

GOING HOME — Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Stanek, parents of sextuplets born recently leave Colorado University Medical Center in Denver, Colo., Tuesday, after she was released. Mushroom Search Is Now Underway

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal food inspectors are launching a search of more than 5,000 warehouses across the country to check every can of mushrooms they can find for signs of poisoning.

At the same time the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) warned consumers not to open or eat any can of mushrooms now on home shelves that may be swollen, leaky or appear in any other way to be abnormal.

The massive warehouse search and the warning were triggered by an intensive FDA investigation of the mushroom industry which the agency said revealed that half of the 42 known mushroom processing plants in the country were using defective equipment or inadequate operating procedures.

FDA began its investigation after a spate of industry recalls — five so far this year — involving mushrooms contaminated with botulinum toxin. The toxin, which attacks the central nervous system and can cause death, usually results from inadequate cooking procedures during the canning process.

FDA Commissioner Dr. Alexander Schmidt said the agency has imposed "new mandatory production safeguards" on the mushroom industry and "we are confident that mushroom processors can now produce a safe product."

"However, because of a series of recent recalls caused by botulinum contamination, we believe it is necessary to expand our examination to all outstanding mushroom stocks canned before industrywide corrective measures were instituted," Schmidt added.

Court Appearance Today For Newburgh Teachers

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (UPI) —

Officials of the striking teacher's union in this Hudson Valley city were scheduled to appear in State Supreme Court at Goshen today, to answer a temporary restraining order against the walkout.

The order, based on the state's Taylor Law, which bars strikes by public employees, was signed by Justice Edward O'Gorman last week and seeks to end the strike, now in its second week.

Both sides in the dispute met informally Tuesday, but no official negotiating sessions were planned. The strike began Sept. 17.

Acting Superintendent of Schools Alfred Dicesare said school for the 13,000 students in the city would remain in session, with substitute teachers and other personnel manning the classrooms.

GOP Chairman Hits 'Smear' Charge by Dems

KINGSTON

City Republican Chairman Frank Fabbie has taken issue with his Democratic counterpart Larry Woerner, who charged Saturday night that the Republicans were running a "smear campaign."

"We resent this charge by the Democrats and the attack on the integrity of our campaign," Fabbie said, referring to Woerner's statement at the annual Democratic dinner on Saturday night.

"Bill Merrill has run a clean campaign, dealing with the issues and not centered on personalities," Fabbie said. "Any one who has followed the campaign knows that Bill Merrill and Bert Ellis have studied the problems facing Kingston today and have questioned the methods used by the Koenig administration to solve them."

William B. Merrill Jr. is the Republican-Conservative candidate for mayor. Bert A. Ellis is running on the same ticket for alderman-at-large. They are opposed by incumbent Democrat Liberals Francis R. Koenig and T. Robert Gallo.

"This isn't a smear campaign," Fabbie reiterated. "If some of the issues haven't been too pleasant then the Democrats can only blame themselves for that predicament. Politics isn't all a bed of roses and sometimes the truth hurts."

"But that isn't the case here," Fabbie said. "The fact of the matter is Woerner labeled it a smear campaign and quite simply enough, it's not true."

"To borrow a well-known Democrat favorite expression, 'If you can't stand the heat, then get out of the kitchen.' I think Mr. Woerner owes Bill Merrill and the Republican Party an apology, or at least an explanation of his remarks," Fabbie concluded.

Vols Meeting

The Kingston Volunteer Firemen's Association will meet at Cordts Hose Co., Delaware Avenue, Thursday at 8 p.m. Weiner Hose Co. will host the meeting. Reservations for the New York City Fire Department tour, scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 20, should be made at this time. Line officers, delegates and all volunteer firemen of the city companies are urged to attend.

Woodstock Hopeful Hits Issue

WOODSTOCK past several months negotiations. Sy Gottlieb, Democratic candidate for Woodstock Town Council in the November election, has launched his campaign the town's concerned citizens, recently with a sharply worded letter to the town board attack on both the National Bank and the town board of Orange and Ulster and the solution which would save Long current Republican controlled year. Last week, there appeared town board over their respective an open letter in the local press roles in the worsening Longyear House crisis.

"The Longyear House, which is located adjacent to the present Orange and Ulster bank building on bank property further out on Rock City Road, has been the object of an extended effort on the part of a large group of Woodstock towns-people interested in maintaining the historic and architectural character and integrity of the village," Gottlieb said. Over the strated the bank's true intentions. For when Robin came up with a feasible plan for renovating and moving the building pursuant to the bank's offer, the bank subtly abandoned its initial offer and began 'fudging' its position.

"The Republican controlled town board's role has not been much better," Gottlieb continued. "Under state law, a town board has the power to create an Historic Landmark's Commission, which commission has the power to preserve venerable and historic buildings within the community from thoughtless and unnecessary destruction. When the issue first arose, it was Vern May's position that it would be wrong to create such a commission just to save Longyear. I agree. But how long does it take to compile an initial list of historic structures in the town worth preserving as historical landmarks so that the commission can be legitimately begun.

"I bet the town historian could come up with a fairly complete list in a couple of weeks at the most. And this thing has been dragging on now for several months. The town board is obviously ducking the issue.

"I'm not going to wait until January of 1974 to do something about this. Before that time, the building may very well be either torn down or collapse for lack of upkeep.

"If the building is to be saved, and I believe it certainly should be, the Ad Hoc Commission and other citizens in the community concerned about the town's present character, must act speedily and decisively to bring home to the bank the town's strong opposition to the bank's decision," Gottlieb concluded.

Impressive '74 Model Lineup

New Olds Now at Gem Cadillac

KINGSTON Oldsmobile's impressive 1974 model lineup includes a new Cutlass Salon series, a Ninety-Eight Regency coupe, Toronado Brougham and two new intermediate station wagons. All Oldsmobile models, with extensive design changes and a long list of engineering advancements, are now at Gem Cadillac-Oldsmobile showrooms, East Chester Street Bypass. Engines for 1974 feature four-barrel carburetors as standard equipment on all intermediate and full-size models. The 350-cubic-inch Rocket V-8 is standard on all Cutlass, Vista Cruiser, Delta 88 and Delta 88

Royale models. The 455-cubic-inch V-8 is standard on the Custom Cruiser, Ninety-Eight and Toronado models and optional on all but the Omega. The standard Omega engine is 250-cubic-inch with the 350 V-8 optional.

Oldsmobile V-8 engines continue to feature positive valve rotators on intake and exhaust valves plus "flex-head" intake valves for increased durability and emission control. The two intermediate Oldsmobile station wagons are extended to the Cutlass Supreme series with two and three-seat models available. Both two and three-seat Vista Cruisers continue to be available with the Vista Vent glass roof ventilator and vinyl woodgrain applique among the standard equipment items.

The compact Omega, introduced in 1973, has received new front end appearance changes including a bright plated die-cast grille with a hydraulic energy-absorbing bumper system front and rear replacing the rigid system used in the '73 models.

Oldsmobile also will introduce about January 1 an optional air cushion restraint system as an alternative to the seat belt system on all Delta 8 (except convertible), Ninety-Eight and Toronado models. The system will provide protection to front seat occupants in frontal collisions. A new air conditioning control system also is available on all full-size Olds for 1974. Called Tempatic, the simplified control provides automatic temperature control, along with manual selection of blower speed and cooling or heating modes.

Shop-Rite Speeds Service

* MIDDLETOWN The completely remodeled Middletown Shop-Rite store had its grand opening this week.

With the renovation of the Route 211 Shop-Rite store, the food chain is offering to all customers the newest concept in supermarket interior design, the speedier checkout service with a complete electronic front end, according to A. Richard Rosenberg, president of Big V Supermarkets.

The electronic front end will give Shop-Rite customers a speedier customer service. The system links the register-like terminals with a central computer which logs simultaneously information recorded in the terminals, data such as cumulative totals of cash taken in by each terminal. By pushing a few buttons, each terminal can get a quick OK for customer checks.

Big V, with headquarters in Florida, N.Y., is listed on the American Stock Exchange and owns and operates 14 supermarkets in the Mid-Hudson Valley, including one in Kingston at Shop-Rite Square, Ulster Avenue Mail.

Plans call for two more supermarkets to be opened in the fall in Rotterdam and Hyde Park, Dutchess County.

1st Hartford Now Controls Wallace Firm

SPRINGFIELD, MASS. Neil H. Ellis, president of First Hartford Corporation of Manchester, Conn., has been elected director of Forbes and Wallace, the Springfield-based department store chain.

Six other directors also were elected.

Ellis assured the special meeting of shareholders that First Hartford has "absolutely no plans to close down its two Springfield stores, but on the contrary plans to expand Forbes-Wallace operation and open at least one or two more stores a year in the future."

First Hartford's purchase of a controlling interest in the chain marks the first time the control of the chain has passed from Forbes and Wallace families since the store was founded nearly a century ago.

First Hartford's stock on the American Stock Exchange showed a net profit of $337,749 equal to 14 cents a share in 1972. Forbes and Wallace showed a loss of about $150,000 on gross sales of about $33 million last year. The new acquisition will give First Hartford gross revenues in excess of $80 million.

Ellis pointed out there isn't a major department store chain in the country that doesn't have large scale real estate operations and with most of them building their own shopping centers.

He said First Hartford and Forbes and Wallace formed a logical partnership for this type of expansion because of their combined merchandizing and real estate ability.

"Furthermore," he said, "it is important to halt a trend of companies coming here and buying up New England department stores and other entities."

"Today, New England is becoming almost a satellite in its department store operation and by making this acquisition we are creating a situation whereby department store ownership is not only remaining in New England but will expand," Ellis concluded.

Forbes and Wallace now operate eight department stores, two in Springfield, one in Northampton, Chicopee, North Adams, Mass., and Poughkeepsie, Kingston and Schenectady, the latter due to be closed after the Christmas holidays.

First Hartford is an outgrowth of Wyndott Wursted Inc., incorporated in Maine in 1969. In 1967, the name was changed to Wyndott Inc. and the present name became effective in 1972. Ellis was named president in 1967.

Heating Oil Rationing Proposed

Cold Winter Predicted for Some This Year

GLENEDEEN BEACH, Ore. (AP) — Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton says he is urging President Nixon to ration heating oil this winter, but even if he does "there are going to be people who are going to be cold."

Morton was joined in his call for the rationing of heating oil by John A. Love, Nixon's special energy advisor. They made their remarks in appearances before the Western Governors' Conference.

The two men said the proposals they had advanced to Nixon dealt only with rationing on a geographic basis and did not contemplate rationing to the consumer. Morton said he expects to decide on the proposals in two weeks.

He spoke of a plan that would allocate heating oil to perhaps 14 or 15 areas of the country. The idea then would be to have government offices in each of the areas to keep track of specific problems.

Love, a former Colorado governor, said the nation will experience "very real difficulties" in the energy field for the next three to five years.

"We must, as Americans, realize the depth and seriousness of this problem," Love told the 12 governors whose annual conference at this seaside resort is devoted exclusively to the energy crisis.

Both Love and Morton appealed to the "American spirit."

"This country is not going to hell in a handbasket because this winter we're probably going to be as much as five to seven per cent short" on heating oil, Morton said.

"There's going to be a lot of political writing about it. But I know that neighbors are neighbors, and I know there are many, many ways we can join together and get around the problem in this short term."

Morton said he expects the administration to establish the regional offices so hardship cases could be dealt with quickly.

The ultimate step in an administration contingency plan would be rationing oil to customers, such as in wartime. But both Morton and Love said that kind of action is not contemplated at this time.

Both emphasized that controls would alleviate an overall shortage.

"Remember, we're managing a shortage," Morton said. "The (rationing) plan doesn't in any way increase the supply of oil."

Morton said the nation can work itself out of its reliance on oil imports from the politically unstable Middle East by developing the West's vast coal reserves for generation of electrical power.

Morton said a Middle East official asked him recently what the United States was going to do about the rising cost of imported oil.

cause they were afraid they were going to lose money."

Lyng said that, for the time being, a temporary surplus of meat will cause a sharp decline in retail prices of all meats.

Harvat said that, when that surplus is gone, prices will stabilize at a slightly higher level. But he said they still will be considerably below the peak summer prices consumers paid for meat.

Meat institute President Clifford B. Cox said the basic concern in the industry is to "provide the incentives for the farmers to produce both the grain" and the livestock necessary to feed the country.

The meat industry leaders agreed that to do that inevitably will mean higher costs for everyone. Harvat said the cost of putting one pound on a steer today is double the cost of two years ago.

Farmers spend more, so the consumer has to pay more, Lyng said.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz spoke to the industry leaders Monday night. In a news conference before his speech, he said federal price controls had been disastrous and price ceilings on meat had been counterproductive.

Butz said the only way to bring down prices was to raise production. And he said, "In the meantime, American housewives will simply have to get used to higher prices."

Lyng, who was assistant agriculture secretary in the first Nixon administration, said government controls were counterproductive in terms of expanding meat supplies.

Even so, Lyng said: "I'm basically optimistic. This country has the capacity to produce an ample supply of food, and the over-all cost to the consumer, proportionate to his income, can be the same as it has been in the last few years."

Low Meat Prices Gone Forever

CHICAGO (AP) — Although meat industry officials predict meat prices will fall substantially in the next few weeks, they say consumers should realize that low prices of past years are gone.

Industry leaders, attending the annual meeting of the American Meat Institute, said consumer awareness is one factor that will determine the supply and cost of meat in the future.

Organized consumer boycotts of meat this year brought about "the purely political response" of price controls on meat, said Jess Harvat, vice president of Swift Fresh Meats Co.

He said the government controls caused farmers to withhold cattle from the market, creating "a beef shortage when no shortage existed" and causing "reasonably stable price levels" to skyrocket.

In addition, incoming institute President Richard E. Lyng said the boycotts and price controls had endangered future supplies of meat.

"Producers who normally would have been expanding production either stood still or cut back," Lyng said. "It takes a year from the time a farmer decides to produce a hog to the time it's ready for market. It takes three years for cattle."

"But this summer we saw farmers slaughtering pregnant sows and drowning chicks because they were afraid they were going to lose money."

Lyng said that, for the time being, a temporary surplus of meat will cause a sharp decline in retail prices of all meats.

Harvat said that, when that surplus is gone, prices will stabilize at a slightly higher level. But he said they still will be considerably below the peak summer prices consumers paid for meat.

First Fall Festival Flower Show

The Kingston Fall Festival will feature another "first" for its 1973 celebration on Saturday, Oct. 13: an area Flower Show geared to a historic theme. In reporting planning for the first Fall Festival Flower Show, Coordinator Mrs. Allan L. Hanstein announced that this new project is being developed by Mrs. William E. Ryland, Kingston, and Mrs. E. Robert Johnson, Saugerties.

with the involvement of several of the area's outstanding Garden Clubs.

"Autumn in Colonial Kingston" is the theme of the Flower Show. The show program is being developed along simple lines initially, and will be composed of four divisions. The first division will be in Artistic Design with Mrs. Ryland as division consultant. Divisions 2 and 3 will represent Children's Artistic Design for six to 10 years olds, and Youth's Artistic Design for 11 to 16 year olds, consultant to both divisions being Mrs. Johnson. These divisions will be geared to the Colonial household, Colonial kitchen, living area, bedrooms or even the barn, corn shed or other Colonial outbuilding settings. The horticultural section will involve garden specimens potted or unpotted. Flower Show Fact Sheets are available at Kingston Luggage on Wall Street, and the lobby desk of the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Mrs. Ryland and Mrs. Johnson pointed out that the Flower Show will be held at the Senate House, hopefully in a special tent on the lawn. The Flower Show will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and judging will be done by popular vote with first, second and third places to be awarded. "We expect individual show entries from members of our Garden Clubs," they noted, "but we most strongly urge all interested adults and children of our area to enter items in our Fall Festival Flower Show." Exhibitors should register all planned entries in advance by calling Mrs. Ryland or Mrs. Johnson by October 6th or as soon after as possible.

The Flower Show planners also were advised in the initial development of the new "Colonial Kingston" Flower Show by several local club groups including Mrs. George Bushnell, the Laurel Garden Club; Mrs. John Whritener, Saugerties Society of Little Gardens; Mrs. M. Leslie Denning and Mrs. Dwight Marvin, Woodstock Garden Club; Mrs. Edward Tetlow, Ulster Garden Club; Mrs. Everett Landers, Kingston Little Garden Club; Mrs. George Antonietta, Morning Unit and Mrs. David H. Ryland, Evening Unit of Hillside Acres Garden Club; and Mrs. George Sherrer, Tongore Garden Club.

The traditional Kingston Fall Festival under Mrs. Hanstein's direction is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, the Kingston Uptown Businessmen's Association and the Friends of Historic Kingston. The 10 to 4 events, centered largely in the historic Stockade area, will include a Kingston Indians performance; a Kingston High School Band parade in the Stockade area; historic films by Henry Milonig and Dr. Charles Galyon; church service and bells; the historic Stockade Walking Tour and, hopefully, a carriage tour; Ulster apple stands; the Wall Street sidewalk market place; an outdoor cafe; free refreshments of cider, cookies and donuts; an area art show; an standing crafts and historic exhibits centered in several Wall Street banks; and the new "Colonial Kingston" Flower Show on the Senate House lawns.

Women in the Labor Force

ADELAIDE VALLE, who is a secretary employed by the Ulster County Community College, is typical of many women who find themselves holding down important jobs. Mrs. Valle agrees that secretarial positions are satisfying and in many instances open doors to greater career opportunities. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

It's no small secret that many women are interested in returning to the business world to supplement family incomes. Many more women become interested in returning to the labor force after their children have grown and left home.

In Ulster County, we are fortunate to have a junior college interested enough to provide the necessary training for these women. Dr. James Loricchio, chairman of the Division of Business, says the College always stands ready to aid these women through counseling. Efforts are made to make their responsibilities as wives and mothers compatible with their educational programs.

"We welcome these mature women," says Dr. Loricchio, "and have been successful in giving them needed training in preparation for their return to the job market."

Specifically, the area of secretarial skills has been given a boost. A new one-year diploma program in Secretarial Studies started this fall. "This program is ideal for persons who have had previous typewriting and shorthand backgrounds," Dr. Loricchio says, "and gives interested individuals an opportunity to build upon their business skills."

gram routinely start in intermediate and advanced skill courses complemented by recommended business courses and free electives.

Dear Abby

Readers Defend Girl's Right to Ride

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Apropos the 13-year-old Jewish girl who was chosen to represent her county in a horse show, but because it fell on the High Holy Days, her parents wouldn't let her. Now, I am a Jewish grandmother, and I think the girl should be allowed to ride on the holiday. Loving horses the way she does, if she is forced to miss this big event, she will grow to resent or even hate her Jewishness.

Some Jews think that going to the High Holy Day services makes them good Jews. I disagree.

I think your telling the child that she had no choice but to obey her parents was wrong.

LILY SELWYN, L.A.
DEAR ABBY: That letter from the 13-year-old Jewish girl whose parents refused to let her ride in the horse show because it fell on the High Holy Days is one I would like to answer.

I understand exactly how that girl feels because I am a 14-year-old Jewish girl who also loves horses.

Since Yom Kippur is the Jewish holiday when Jews are supposed to fast, why not have the girl tell her parents that if they let her ride in the horse show on that day she will promise not to eat anything, and after she finishes with the show, the rest of the day she will observe the holiday the way her parents want her to?

ALSO JEWISH

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the Jewish Girl whose parents wouldn't let her participate in the horse show on a Jewish holiday: The girl's resentment should be directed not to her parents or to the Jewish faith, but to the organization that scheduled the horse show on a Jewish holiday.

Calendars are available to all clubs and organizations showing the important religious holidays of all minority groups, so there is no excuse for scheduling an important event on a day that would conflict with one's religious observances. Would they have scheduled a horse show on Easter or Christmas?

With the increasing awareness of the rights of minorities, some progress has been made, but we still have a long way to go.

A CONSCIOUS CATHOLIC

DEAR ABBY: Both your attitude and that of the girl's parents burned me up!

The girl obviously is extremely interested and involved in horses and horse shows. She has had to work very hard with her horse to be selected to represent her county. This is her passion, her main joy in life, and what she wants to devote her energies to.

She is an individual, a complete human being — not the property of her parents. It would seem that parents should be glad that their child is involved in such a hard-working and constructive activity.

Judaism does not mean that much to the girl now. Have her own desires and opinions less value because she is younger than her parents?

This girl will give more thought and time to religion in her own time when she is ready for it. To frustrate the constructive, joyous energy in her now would be a mistake.

Nuptial Vows Are Exchanged

Mrs. Kathleen Margaret Nowakowski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent T. Mikalonis of Accord, became the bride of Joseph E. McCoy of Kerhonkson on Saturday, Sept. 8. The bridegroom is the son of Beatrice McCoy of Troy and the late Earl McCoy.

The Rev. Thomas J. Hayes, cousin of the bridegroom, officiated at the ceremony at Our Lady of Lourdes Church in Kerhonkson. He was assisted by the Rev. John J. Budwick, Miss Anne Heninger was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a white organza sleeveless gown with red velvet dots. Accordion ruffles outlined the scooped neckline and apron-effect on the skirt. A red ribbon encircled the empire waistline, terminating in a bow and sash in back. She wore a white picture hat with ruffled veil on the crown and rim. Flowers adorned the floor-length veil and she carried a bouquet of white and yellow daisies.

The bride's three sisters were attendants. Miss Eileen Mikalonis was maid of honor. Miss Carol Mikalonis and Miss Nancy Mikalonis were bridesmaids. Elizabeth Post Answers Your Etiquette Questions

Dear Mrs. Post:

I have a friend in the service. He's my boy friend so I guess I should write to him. But I don't know his serial number and I don't think the letter would get to him. My friends tell me he should write first, but he hasn't yet. I don't know if he knows my address, altho he knows where I live. I'm just a little suspicious. There are probably lots of pretty girls out there. He didn't really talk to me the night before he left so I'm confused. What should I do?

Peggy

Dear Peggy:

Wait for your boy friend to write you. If he had really wanted to hear from you, he would have made sure you had his serial number and he had your address. If he is still interested, he will manage to find it out. If you don't hear soon, you would be better off forgetting him and looking for a boy friend closer to home.

Dear Mrs. Post:

My father in law recently died and most of the sympathy cards came addressed just to my husband. I loved my father in law very much and perhaps feel a little left out. When a loved one dies, I usually address the card to the whole family. Am I wrong?

Mrs. J. Huntley

Dear Mrs. Huntley: No, you're not wrong. Many people believe that sympathy cards should be addressed to the "blood" relative only, but this is not so. It is thoughtful to include the in-laws whenever there was a close relationship. Try not to feel left out. These people are simply following an old custom.

Dear Mrs. Post:

We have been invited to an open house for the 50th wedding anniversary celebration of a couple we have known for years, but haven't seen recently. It is from 2 to 5 o'clock. Should we plan to be there the entire time, or should we just drop in for a little while?

Mrs. J.

Dear Mrs. J.:

An invitation to an open house means to come at any time between the hours noted, and to stay — within those hours — as long as you wish. Most people arrive at some time during the first two hours (of a three hour invitation) and stay for approximately an hour or an hour and a half.

Dear Mrs. Post:

When you take your lady friend to dinner, who begins eating first?

Peter

Dear Peter:

A man should not start before his date, but he may start at the same time. In other words, she should be the first to make the gesture.

Dear Mrs. Post:

If you are having a double ring ceremony, does the ring bearer carry both rings?

Carol

Dear Carol:

It is safer to have the real rings carried by the best man and maid (or matron) of honor, with two facsimiles sewed to the ring bearer's cushion. In this way, there is no confusion should he turn the cushion around, no chance of losing the rings, and no problem of where he should stand during the exchanging of the rings.

Helpful Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE
IT'S NO SNAP TO USE FRESH GINGER

Dear Friends:
Well, so far I have failed on my fresh ginger project, but I am still trying. Who knows, I may make it yet!

For those that wonder what I'm talking about, some time ago I asked if any of you good gals knew the secret of putting fresh ginger in an open ginger jar to make the house smell heavenly.

So many of you dear readers have sent directions which they thought would help, but to date, nothing has worked.

I got some to grow roots by burying it completely in wet sand in a capped coffee can for two weeks, but that's about all.

Won't someone please come to my rescue? What do you add? Just what do you do? You can write to me in care of The Daily Freeman. Please...

Love,
Heloise

Dear Heloise:
I ran out of testing toothpicks one day when baking a cake, but I found that a strand of raw spaghetti works just as well or better.

It can be any length and you can easily see how moist the cake is. It costs next to nothing, and is sure to be clean.

LETTER OF LOVE

Dear Heloise:
My husband calls my kitchen "Heloise's Laboratory." The walls are solid with your hints tacked up and I am always testing something that you have written.

Mrs. L. Blanchard

Dear Heloise:
I have just discovered how to keep books that I am presently reading, neat and not laying around.

I just take a metal coat hanger, not with cardboard, put it between the page I'm on, and hang it in the closet.

Sam Neely
Age 9 1/2

This is real nifty Sam, but I betcha it would be a good idea to use it only when reading paperback books 'cause it might be harmful to the heavier, regular-sized books.

Aunt Heloise

Dear Heloise:
Here is a no-no that may save someone from ruining fine crystal goblets or plain old drinking glasses (like mine) if washing by hand. When washing inside the glass, be sure to remove your rings. My diamond (I need a magnifying glass to find it) scored the inside of my glasses. I kept rewashing because I thought they were still dirty.

Then came the dawn...
Mrs. Wm. Nuber

Dear Heloise:
Some of us old-timers can well remember the meatless days of the depression.

Some lunch counters in stores have always featured turkey dinners. A few thin slices of turkey over generous servings of dressing.

The dressing, made with crust and heels of bread or stale bread, stretches any kind of meat.

Most all cookbooks have dressing recipes, or else it can be purchased at the grocery store in packages and all you do is add moisture.

You could also look up a neighbor or relative that maybe remembers "way back then" who would be glad to advise you. It's worth a try!

Ulster Soil Survey Is Complete

By LYNN MULVANEY

LAKE MOHONK
Ulster County's survey of every inch of soil in its 731,520 acres has been completed four years ahead of time and ceremonies marking the survey of the "last acre" highlighted the four-day session of the 1973 annual meeting of the New York Soil Conservation Districts Association at Lake Mohonk Tuesday.

Legislature Chairman Peter J.

Savago (R-Dist. 8) and Kenneth Grant, administrator, U.S. Soil Conservation Service, were presented with gold augers by Larry Tornes, soil scientist with the Soil Conservation Service. Savago commended the Ulster County Soil Conservation District and its chairman Victor McCord for the "accelerated project" pointing out that the results of the soil survey report are being distributed to town boards for their use in planning and zoning. Six soil interpretation maps have been prepared for the rapidly urbanizing sections of the county. The County and State Health Departments and the Department of Environmental Conservation are now using this information in subdivision reviews and John Anna, District Conservationist has been working with these agencies on proposed development sites. Savago pointed out that bankers, realtors, home builders, subdividers, land appraisers, engineers and foresters are also finding this information most valuable. The Town of New Paltz has already used the survey for zoning of a flood plain and the town planning board now has restrictions on buildings on the flood plain. Savago expressed his appreciation to Anna Tornes and Francis E. Mulvaney, retired District Conservationist for directing the project.

Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-101st Dist.) and Assemblyman Clarence Lane (R-102nd) took part in a panel discussion in which Bell explained the legislative procedure for obtaining consideration of bills relating to conservation, explaining how to get them before the proper committees. Lane spoke concerning financial involvement in conservation legislation and suggested that the solutions to many of the state's conservation problems is "good land management," on a regional basis. Grant commended the Ulster County Soil Conservation District and the U. S. Soil Conservation District for accelerating the project saying it would pay for itself in the first year of its 25-year minimal life expectancy. Tornes, who guided the project to its completion expressed appreciation to the soil scientists assisting him including James Brown, Les Crandall and Garry Nightingale. County Legislator S. Robert Kelder (R-Dist. 2) welcomed the hundreds attending the meeting and New York State Commissioner of the Department of Environmental Conservation, Henry S. Diamond spoke Monday.

Among the many in attendance were Ulster County Planning Director Herbert Hekler, County Legislator Richard D. Nace (R-Dist. 2) former chairman of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors Charles Relyea, Robert Addison, administrator of the New York State Soil Conservation Service, State Senator Bernard Smith and Silas Eakins and William Crony of the Water Conservation Committee.

Student-Voter Registration ... Court Action Looms

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ
A drive to register students at the State University College at New Paltz for the Nov. 6 New Paltz local elections will begin Oct. 1, according to a statement released Tuesday by the drive's sponsoring group, the Committee to Register Students.

Carol Henning, chairwoman of the committee stated that the drive is aiming to register at least 3,000 of the 6,000 potential student voters for the town elections, and if local officials will not register the students she said the committee will sue. According to Ms. Henning, the New York Civil Liberties Union has been contacted, and will take the case to Ulster County Court if the students are not registered.

From what Ulster County Elections Commissioner Edwin F. Callahan told the Freeman Tuesday, it appears that few students will be registered.

The committee is going to seek to have the students register Oct. 11 and 13, the dates for local voter registration, at the New Paltz Town Hall. Central voter registration is already closed.

Ms. Henning emphasized that the registration drive was going to be strictly non-partisan. "Students often complain of the treatment they receive in town," said a committee statement, "and now they have a chance to do something about it—if they register and vote."

Callahan said the Ulster County Board of Elections would be glad to help students register, but only for what state election law says is a student's home district.

"We are still bound by Section 151 of the Election Law," said Callahan. Among the provisions of that section is the stipulation that no one can gain or lose a residence "while a student of any institution of learning." That means that students, for purposes of the law, are residents of where they came from, despite their living in New Paltz while they go to school there. Callahan said some students, such as married couples who have established a legal residence in New Paltz, would be eligible for voter registration there, but that the great majority of students would have to register in the districts they came from.

Callahan bases his definition of residence on the definition supplied by Section 151, which says it is "that place where a person maintains a fixed permanent and principal home and to which he, wherever temporarily located, always intends to return."

Ms. Henning challenges this, and cites recent court rulings, particularly a NYCLU-argued case in Federal Court involving students at the State University College at Stony Brook, which she said established that students only have to have a "community of interest" to be able to register where they go to school.

She said all that students should need to register in New Paltz is proof of a New Paltz address, such as a driver's license or telephone bills, or a bank account in a New Paltz bank.

She disagreed with the argument that students were only going to be in the community a limited time, and thus should not vote there. She pointed out that many employees of such firms as IBM lived in New Paltz, many of them for a shorter period of time than the four years a student normally spends in New Paltz, and no one questioned their right to register locally.

With the probability of a court case rising to be nearly a certainty, Ms. Henning said she felt the student voter drive might not have much of an effect on the upcoming elections; however, she thought her side was going to win their suit, and that could have a marked effect on future elections in New Paltz.

Callahan said the local election officials in New Paltz would be enforcing the same laws as county election board officials do. "They took an oath," he said. He said he knew of no court cases changing the law and had received no word of any changes from the State Attorney General. "We don't want to deprive anyone of their right to vote," said Callahan, "but we have an obligation to see that they vote in the proper place."

SBA to Resume Ulster Visits

The Small Business Administration (SBA) will resume its visits to Ulster County. These visits, or counseling sessions, begin again on Thursday, Oct. 4.

In making the announcement, Len Cane, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of Ulster County, said that once again the sessions would be held in the Governor Clinton Hotel in Kingston from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. This "circuit rider" effort by the SBA was originally arranged by the Chamber and

Richard D. Mercier, an SBA loan officer, will visit the area on October 4 and the first Thursday of each month thereafter. Interviews are scheduled through the Chamber office (338-5100). Appointments are set up on a 15-minute-per interview basis and must be made in advance by calling the Chamber. Cleon... 'I Wanted to Do Something'

By United Press International
Cleon Jones put it quite simply.
"I wanted to do something tonight. It was Willie's night and I wanted to go out there and do something big."
That's just what Jones did on

Willie Mays night when he hit a game-winning homer and made 1½ games ahead of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who lost to the New York Mets 2-1 Tuesday night to move a step closer to the National League Eastern Division crown.
The victory moved the Mets by a game in the loss column. Pittsburgh Pirates, who lost to the New York Mets 2-1 Tuesday night to move a step closer to the National League Eastern Division crown.
With the Pirates now trailing straight victory and Manager Yogi Berra said, "it's like with the Yanks. At this time of year, we always said it was time to put a new wing on the house."

A throng of over 53,000 went to Shea Stadium to honor Mays, who has announced he is retiring at the end of this season, on his farewell appreciation night. Mays was in uniform but didn't play because of his injured ribs.
But once the game started, Jones was the show.
His sixth inning homer snapped a 1-1 tie and then he saved the game with a running, back-handed catch of Felipe Alou's line drive to deep left center with two out and two on in the seventh.

HE BEAT THE BALL — Mets' Rusty Staub beats Tim Lincecum's throw to first baseman Hal Breeden during first inning of Tuesday's game. Mets won, 2-1. (UPI)

Baseball Loves Willie

NEW YORK (UPI)—They answered the last question Willie Mays wanted to know Tuesday night at the New York Mets' "hail and farewell" party for the 42-year old super star.
"I love baseball," Willie said before the game. "I just hope baseball loves me."
He got the answer for some 45 minutes of virtually sustained ovation, from the moment he walked onto the field at 7:35 PM to the moment the ceremonies were completed. He got it from more than 53,000 fans who cheered continuously throughout the ceremony and he also got it from the "Who's Who" of baseball greats who gathered to grace the party.

WILLIE'S NIGHT — Willie Mays brushes a tear from his eye during farewell tribute given him Tuesday night before Mets-Expos game. At right is Willie's wife May. (UPI)

"Somehow I thought the time would never come for me to retire," said Mays when all the gifts had been presented and all the stars introduced. "But there always comes a time for someone to get out. When I see these kids in both of these dugouts fighting for a pennant I know it's time to say, 'Willie, say goodbye to America.'"
"This is a sad day for me," he said. "I may not look sad but it is a new experience to have you cheer for me and not to be able to do anything about it."

Willie, his wife and son turned, then, and walked off the field to the strains of Auld Lang Syne.

The "Who's Who" of baseball greats included Joe DiMaggio and Stan Musial, who know that Willie is going to join them in Cooperstown, N.Y., as soon as he is eligible under the rules of the voting.
"I didn't play alongside him so I can't really define his greatness," said DiMaggio. "But everything I've ever seen, read or heard makes me think he was one of the greatest defensive outfielders who ever lived."

"His combination of skills made him great," said Musial. "He was inclined to be a streaky hitter for so great a player but he combined hitting, fielding, running and throwing to an amazing degree and he was a game-winning hitter."
"He was the complete player," added Duke Snider, the Brooklyn Dodger center-fielder who played against Mays in so many tough pennant races in the 1950s. "He had all-around skills. He was the finished player."

Mays arrived at Shea Stadium at 4 p.m., four hours before the ceremonies were to begin, just like it was another day at work. He was relaxed before the game, joking with sports writers in the clubhouse and insisting there "would be no tears." Not an articulate man over the years, he made his farewell speech with dignity and a feel for the moment.
Then he walked off the field, said the appropriate thank-yous and goodbyes, climbed into his pink Cadillac with his family, made a right turn out of the Shea Stadium parking lot and drove off into baseball history.

Aaron Believes He'll Reach 714

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hank Aaron thinks he can hit the two home runs he needs to tie Babe Ruth's career record in the Atlanta Braves' four remaining games but breaking that record this year "may be asking too much."
The 39-year-old Aaron has 712 homers, 39 this season. Ruth's record is 714.
"I still feel I have a chance," Aaron said Tuesday night after going hitless in the Braves' 5-1 loss to Los Angeles.
"I feel I can still hit two home runs in the four games we have left. But 715," Aaron mused, "it's going to be tough to hit three home runs in four days. The only way I could do it would be to hit two in one game. No, my chances of hitting three home runs doesn't look very good."
Aaron was 0-for-4 against Dodger right-hander Don Sutton Tuesday night. But he came mighty close in the seventh inning when he drove center-fielder Willie Davis near the 402-foot marker with a low liner.
"That was the first really good pitch Sutton gave me to hit," said Aaron. "It was a low fast ball. But I was guessing high ball and I just got my bat half way round, then stopped. For some reason, I didn't hit the ball like I usually do. I didn't follow through. I was surprised it carried as far as it did."

Sutton "thought it was gone. I said to myself, there's 713. It was the best pitch I gave him to hit."
Sutton wanted one point perfectly clear. "If Hank Aaron expected me to lay the ball in there, then he had the wrong guy. The thing is, Hank Aaron doesn't need anyone to lay one in. He's going to break the record—and it's going to be off some pitcher who challenges him."
Any pitcher who does "lay it in" probably would get in "sioner Bowie Kuhn is in town to watch Aaron's try for the Ruth record. Kuhn has warned dire consequences for any pitcher who deliberately serves up home runs to Aaron. Nos. 714 or 715.
Aaron said he felt "no pressure" Tuesday night but admitted he was "a little nervous at first, then I settled down."
"I felt good," he said. "I just ran into someone (Sutton) who was better than I was for the night."

Sutton, who had a no-hitter going for 5 1-3 innings and a one-hit shutout for 7 1-3, got Aaron to bounce out with a slider in the second inning, got him to pop up on a "fast ball going away" in the fourth, had him hit that 400-foot liner off a low fast ball in the seventh and then got him to ground out again in the ninth.
"I had pitches to hit," said Aaron. "He's a good pitcher, you have to respect him."
The Dodgers got two runs and three hits off Atlanta knuckleballer Phil Niekro in the first inning, then Niekro blanked them on two singles over the next seven innings. Ron Cey cinched it in the ninth with a three-run homer off relieve Dave Cheadle.
"This season has been a good season for me, individually," said Aaron, who is hitting .291 with 90 runs batted in. "My legs feel good, I just feel good. Last year, after the strike, it took me a month to play back into shape."
"I hit 34 home runs last year and, without the strike, I would have hit about 40."
"Then this business with Ruth would now be over."

Weaver's a Winner

By United Press International
Earl Weaver was answering a question, not really tooting his own horn, when he recalled the record of the Baltimore Orioles since he took over as manager July 11, 1968.
"I've got the best record of any manager in the history of baseball over five seasons," said Weaver, who has won 540 and lost 334 en route to four division championships, three American League pennants and one World Series triumph in five years.
But for all his success, Weaver never has been named the Manager of the Year. This year, armed with the best record in the league, it would be hard to deny him.
The Orioles, who defeated

Detroit 8-3 last night, need to win all their remaining six games to finish with another 100-victory season—a feat they accomplished in 1969, '70 and '71. Weaver thinks his team may be able to do it.
"Winning the last six games would give us 11 straight going into the playoffs," Weaver said. "And two of my teams did end the regular seasons with 11-game winning streaks."
Those teams, 1970 and '71, both made the World Series but only the first one went all the way, beating Cincinnati in five games. Pittsburgh edged Baltimore in seven games in 1971.
Reminiscent of the old, powerful Oriole squads, Baltimore drubbed Detroit Tuesday night with a barrage of extra-base hits. Rookie Jim Fuller hit two homers (his first in the majors) for three RBIs, Rich Coggins belted a two-run homer and Al Bumby doubled and drove in a run.

Jesse Jefferson benefited from the power show to gain his sixth victory against five defeats.
In other AL games, Boston clipped Cleveland 3-2. Milwaukee edged New York 3-2 in 13 innings. Kansas City tripped Chicago 6-2. Oakland beat Minnesota 9-4 and Texas defeated California 4-1 in 10 innings.
Designated hitter Orlando Cepeda hit his first home run since Aug. 27, a three-run shot in the first inning, to lead Boston over Cleveland. Cepeda's 20th homer following a single by Tommy Harper and a walk to Carl Yastrzemski was all the help Roger Moret needed in lifting his record to 12-2.
Pedro Garcia's single with one out in the 13th inning scored Wilbur Howard with the winning run for Milwaukee.
Kansas City's Hal McRae drove in three runs with a pair of singles to help Steve Busby, who scattered 10 hits, even his record at 15-15 at the expense of Chicago.
Tony Oliva, shooting for the AL batting title, drove in five runs with a homer and a double. Harmon Killebrew added a two-run homer and Mike Adams drove in two runs with a solo homer and a single as Minnesota battered four Oakland pitchers for 13 hits.
Jim Spencer's two-run single highlighted a three-run Texas rally in the top of the 10th inning to deprive California's Bill Singer of his 20th victory. Only 11 other pitchers have won 20 games in both major leagues.

Steve Carlton pitched a five-hitter and Mike Anderson and Bill Robinson slugged homers to lift Philadelphia over Pittsburgh. Carlton, a 27-game winner last year, gained his 13th win against 19 losses.
"I'll have to admit I didn't want to get that 20th loss but it didn't have anything to do with the way I pitched," Carlton said. "I just pitched more intelligently and had more control after the first few innings."
It's now just about a two-team race. Chicago is in third place, 3½ games back while St. Louis and Montreal are both four games out.
In the other games, Chicago edged St. Louis 4-3, Houston beat San Francisco 5-1, Los Angeles beat Atlanta 5-1 and Cincinnati edged San Diego 3-2.
Hank Aaron failed to homer as the Braves lost to Los Angeles. Aaron went hitless in four attempts but just missed his 713th homer in the seventh inning when he hit a deep drive to center that Willie Davis grabbed in front of the 402-foot sign.
Jose Cardenal drilled a two-run double with the bases loaded with two out in the ninth inning to cap a three-run rally and give the Cubs the victory over the Cardinals.
Bob Watson drove in two runs with a solo homer and a single to pace the Astros over the Giants. Tom Griffin pitched a four-hitter for the Astros.
Cincinnati scored all three runs in the sixth inning to beat San Diego and give Jack Billingham his 19th victory. Billingham pitched a five-hitter.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Philadelphia southpaw Steve Carlton hopes that Pittsburgh wins the National League East title, but it didn't look that way Tuesday night when he fired a five-hitter as the Phillies edged the Pirates 2-1 on home runs by Mike Anderson and Dale Robinson.
The loss shoved the Pirates 1½ games behind the division-leading New York Mets, who nipped Montreal 2-1.
The Phillies play the Pirates again tonight in Pittsburgh with Dick Ruthven (6-9) expected to pitch against the Pirates' Steve Blass (3-9).
"I get no extra kick out of beating a team in a pennant race," Carlton said. "Actually, I'd like to see Pittsburgh win it because I know some of those guys."
Carlton, Cy Young Award winner last year with a 27-10 record, struck out seven and allowed only one runner to reach second base until the eighth inning when Dave Cash tripled and scored on Gene Clines' groundout.
Anderson led off the second inning with his ninth homer and Robinson lined his 25th with two out in the sixth off losing pitcher Jim Rooker (9-6).
"I'm a professional and anytime a pro can deliver a key home run to win a game, he's just doing his job," Robinson, a Pittsburgh native said. "The only added satisfaction I got was the first homer I hit here with my mom and dad and relatives in the stands."
Carlton was asked if he was

THE HOWE FAMILY — The three Howes, father Gordie (L) and sons Marty (C) and Mark (R) take to the ice for the first time in league play Tuesday in New York City, as their team, the Houston Aeros prepared to meet New England Whalers for 15-minute period as part of 4-team hockey spectacular staged by the WHA. (UPI)

Gordie Comes Back

NEW YORK (UPI)—When it was time for the game to begin, a familiar, gray-haired man wearing the big No. 9 on his back strode to the dressing room door, looked around, smiled, and said: "It's been so long, I don't know where the rink is."

Just a few minutes later, though, Gordie Howe knew exactly where he was and what he was doing.

The first time he touched the puck, 21 seconds after the opening faceoff of the exhibition between his Houston Aeros and the World Hockey Association champion New England Whalers, the game's greatest scorer notched the first goal of his comeback. And in the matter of a few minutes more, he was engaging in a high-sticking duel with a rival player.

It was only an exhibition, a mild workout that should have been of little significance for a man who had spent 25 years in the National Hockey League, scoring 786 goals in regular season competition and another 67 in the playoffs. But for Howe, at the reckless age of 45, it was a goal and a night to remember.

In addition to it being his first competitive appearance in two years, since his "retirement" from the Detroit Red Wings, Howe was skating alongside two of his sons. And it was 18-year-old left wing Mark Howe, in his first pro outing, who drew an assist on the goal. Marty Howe, a 19-year-old defenseman, also was on the ice at the time.

"Mark made the play," the beaming Gordie said later. "He retrieved the puck after I took (Tom) Webster out. He was in the process of dropping it for me when he got hit by one of their defensemen. All I had to do was shoot. The net was only two feet away from me."

Mark, however, disclaimed any credit for the goal, saying he hadn't even touched the puck.

Nevertheless, it was a glowing night for the Howe family, with Gordie also receiving credit for another assist and both of his sons showing poise and ability beyond their tender years. Gordie also enlivened the proceedings by engaging Whaler wing John French in a high-sticking contest.

"Somebody speared me on the leg and I thought he was the one who did it," Gordie said. "I was real tired then. If I really meant to do anything, it would have been different. I was just trying to get his attention."

French, a big man who wore a white headband, said, "I got a mouthful of elbow."

UCCC Booters Rout Orange, 7-2

MIDDLETOWN — The National Junior College Athletic Association's (NJCAA) pre-season soccer poll was announced Tuesday almost simultaneously with the clash here of two Mid-Hudson Conference powers — Ulster Community and Orange County.

Westchester Community was rated No. 10 in the nation and Ulster was completely ignored. Take it from Coach Jim Migli and his Orange booters, it could be a tremendous oversight.

"They blew us right off the field in the last fifteen minutes," said Coach Migli after Ulster defeated the host Colts with a five-goal second half for a 7-2 romp and an explosive performance that must have rocked the Mid-Hudson Conference world. "Their speed and quickness picked us apart," he added.

Orange's All-America John Maxouris put the Colts ahead 1-0 with a penalty kick at 2:06. UCCC's sensational freshman Mario Oliva, star of the Clipper Tournament, scored the equalizer at 9:06 with an assist from Kurt Nedrick.

Maxouris' second goal — and last for the Colts — came at 28:16 in the first half with an assist from Don Miller. Mario Isaac's penalty kick at 30:35 tied the score at 2-2 and after that it was all Ulster.

Byron Cordero, Ulster's center forward, drilled home a goal 6:50 into the second half on an assist from Oliva, who 12 minutes later fed Walter Elliott for an Ulster score to run the score to 4-2.

The next 15 minutes were sheer devastation for the Colts, as Kurt Nedrick, assisted by Cordero connected at 27:25 and 33:14. Five minutes later, Johnny Robinson, the ex-Kingston High ace, literally drove goalie Evan Nestrodes into the net.

Vizvary disputed the penalty call which set the stage for Maxouris' first goal, but was satisfied with the overall UCCC performance. "We played well and it was a great team effort," said Vizvary. He singled out Mario Oliva for special mention. "He is just tremendous and almost unstoppable," said Vizvary of his freshman star.

"I'm sure the Orange players have his number memorized by now."

"We made a few adjustments in our offensive tactics at the start of the second half," Vizvary explained. "We played our own game, controlled the midfield and worked the ball to the front in our own pace."

On Ulster's first score, Kurt Nedrick moved through the Colts' defensive line, then passed off to Oliva, who overwhelmed the goalie in a one-on-one situation. Later Oliva led an offensive, faked the goalie out of his shoes and passed off to Isaac, who slammed the goal home.

"When you control the midfield like we did," Vizvary observed, "you should be able to win."

The game statistics make the game out to be closer than it really was. Ulster had a slight edge, 27-26, in shots on goal. The corner kicks were even at 4-4. Nestrodes had 19 saves for Orange, while Ulster's Mark Charpentier ward off 19 thrusts at the goal.

Vizvary again cleared his bench without any appreciable diminution of Ulster power. "We have a tough game at Mitchell Junior this weekend," said the Ulster coach.

It could be a tough one or it couldn't, but on thing is sure. Both the Mid-Hudson

Like American Golfers In European Classic

TURNBERRY, Scotland (UPI)—American golfers are expected to dominate the $146,375 John Player Classic which begins today over Turnberry's 7,060-yard, par 71 Ailsa course.

British Open champion Tom Weiskopf, U.S. Masters champ Tommy Aaron, Arnold Palmer, Gay Brewer and Chi Chi Rodriguez—all members of the Ryder Cup team which beat Britain and Ireland last week—are in the field, along with U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller and former Masters winner Charles Coody in the chase for Europe's richest prize—$37,500.

Miller was ineligible for the Ryder Cup squad and Coody, who thrashed the British and Irish players in the recent Wills tournament, didn't make the team.

Weiskopf is a 4-1 favorite in the betting, while the 26-year-old Miller is joint second favorite at 8-1 with South African star Gary Player.

Miller has hardly played since sharing second place with Jack Nicklaus behind Weiskopf in the British Open championship in July. "I have lacked enthusiasm," he said. "But I'm playing really good now. This is a hell of a course. It's the kind I like."

He added that the last time he played at Turnberry was as an 18-year-old college student eight years ago when his rounds included a 67.

The 36-strong field comprised of tournament winners from all over the world includes defending champion Bob Charles, the left-handed New Zealander. Charles is quoted at 14-1 along with Palmer and En-

Abramowicz to 49ers

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Dan Abramowicz, the scrappy, skinny New Orleans Saints wide receiver who caught enough passes to stretch nearly 2 1/2 miles, is on his way to San Francisco to finish the season with the 49ers.

In his seventh year from Xavier of Ohio, Abramowicz held every Saints' receiving record with the exception of the longest catch. He also had at least one interception in 79 consecutive league games to put him just 17 games behind Lance Alworth's record.

The former all-pro said Tuesday he requested the trade in hopes of playing with a title contender during the prime of his career.

"The Saints are going to win but it's going to take two or three years," he said. "I've been in pro football seven years so that's nine or 10 years in the league before I can be with a winning club."

In his seven seasons with the Saints, Abramowicz caught 309 passes for 4,875 yards and 37 touchdowns and became one of the favorites of New Orleans fans.

"It's tough to say good-bye to New Orleans," Abramowicz said in an emotional voice. "The whole franchise has been great to me but I've been good to them."

He stayed in New Orleans Tuesday night to keep a speaking engagement with the Saints and Sinners Club, a boosters group.

"I'm going to live here the rest of my life," Abramowicz said. "I'm going to miss playing here. It is the best football city in the world."

"The trade—it's a mutual thing. I asked to leave. There's no hard feelings."

"As far as Coach (John) North is concerned, I just can't say enough about him. He's honest and a tough competitor. I want to make sure the people of New Orleans know of my respect for the man."

North said he reluctantly agreed to the trade after Abramowicz requested the move and the 49ers had given up two high draft choices for the 6-foot-1, 195-pound receiver.

Abramowicz's departure left guards Jake Kupp and Del Williams as the only remaining players from the original 1967 Saints squad.

North also announced the Saints had acquired veteran tight end Len Garrett from Green Bay in another trade Tuesday.

Garrett, a starter in 12 games with the Packers last year, cost the Saints an undisclosed draft choice.

Hawks Down Knicks, 97-86

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI)—The Atlanta Hawks, evenly paced by seven players in double figures, handed the National Basketball Association champion New York Knicks their third straight exhibition loss 97-86 Tuesday night.

Lou Hudson's 17 points led all scorers while teammate Pete Maravich chipped in with 15. Walt Frazier had 16 for the Knicks and Willis Reed added 13.

Atlanta, playing without center Walt Bellamy and guard Herm Gilliam, jumped out to a 52-42 halftime lead behind Maravich's 11 points. New York, playing without guards Dean Meminger and Henry Bibby and forward Phil Jackson, pulled within eight after three periods, but was outscored 22-18 in the final period by the Hawks, who won their first of three exhibition contests.

Colts First In Triangular

Former Pine Bush High School long distance ace George Shurter, now doing his running for Orange County Community College, streaked to a first place finish in a time of 20:56 to lead the Colts to a triangular cross country triumph over Broome County Community College and Ulster County Community College here Tuesday.

Record Crowds For Baseball

NEW YORK (UPI) —Major league baseball attendance has reached an all-time high this season, it was announced Monday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Last weekend's crowds brought the overall paid admissions in the 24 big league parks this year to 29,287,505, breaking the previous record of 29,193,417 set in 1972.

A record 16 of the 24 clubs have already drawn over a million fans and another team —Oakland—needs only 55,000 fans in six remaining home dates to reach that figure. The Los Angeles Dodgers, who have finished their home season, topped all clubs with 2,100,000.

Other teams drawing over one million fans were Boston, Detroit, Milwaukee, New York, California, Chicago and Kansas City in the American League and Chicago, Montreal, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Houston and Cincinnati in the National League.

Shurter finished 29 seconds ahead of Orange teammate Jim Graham as the OCC harriers whipped Broome, 17-38, and Ulster, 15-42. Broome won the third portion of the triangular, 19-38, over the Senators.

By defeating Ulster, Orange jumped to a 1-0 record in the Mid-Hudson Conference. The Colts are 3-0 overall. The Senators were running in their first triangular of the season and thus dropped to 0-2. UCC had taken part in the Region XV Invitational last weekend.

Gary Boice was Ulster's top performer Tuesday. He covered the Watts Park course in 22:28, for a seventh place finish.

Dennis O'Dell of Ulster was 12th and Ed Caputo was 13th.

The Senators return to Watts Park Saturday for the annual Colt Invitational.

The results:

Highland High Ranked 14th

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON — Always powerful Highland High School of the Ulster County Athletic League has been placed 14th in the first New York State Sportswriters Association small school football poll of the season.

The Highlanders, preseason favorites in the UCAL and winners of two straight, were the only local gridder to be ranked among the top 20 in either the small or large school lists. But Beacon (2-0) Ketcham (2-0), and Kingston (1-1) of the Dutchess County Scholastic League, and Walkill (2-0) of the UCAL received honorable mention.

Vestal was tabbed No. 1 large school while defending champion Pleasantville took top honors in the small school division.

Highland has consistently been a highly regarded team in the eyes of NYSWAA selectors. Two seasons ago the Big Blue finished the year in the top ten. Figured to be one of the leading schools in the UCAL again this year, Highland's opening wins, 12-0 over Rondout, and 7-0 over defending league champion Ellenville, have convinced pollsters of the strength of Coach Lem Atkins' eleven. Likewise, Beacon and Ketcham, by winning their first two

Willy Brandt's Reconciliation Policy Traced

EDITOR'S NOTE: Chancellor Willy Brandt goes before the United Nations today to speak as the leader of West Germany, which became a U.N. member only a week ago. In this dispatch, the AP traces the history of Brandt's Ostpolitik, the policy of reconciliation that was a key factor in bringing West and East Germany into the United Nations.

BERLIN (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt told the West Germans almost a year ago: "Not even the Americans could prevent the Berlin Wall, and I cannot conjure it away."

But Brandt has circumvented the barrier across Berlin with a foreign policy that two years ago earned him the Nobel Peace Prize and last week helped bring both Germanys into the United Nations.

He calls it Ostpolitik, a policy of rapprochement with the Soviet bloc while West Germany remains America's staunchest ally in Europe and an integral part of the North Atlantic alliance.

Some observers say Ostpolitik began with the Berlin Wall in 1961 because Brandt, then mayor of West Berlin, realized there was a limit to what the Western allies could do for Berlin.

Special

"The Wall was the turning point," recalls a West Berlin newspaper editor. "I was with Brandt as the East Germans began to build it. He walked up and down, asking over and over, 'Where are the Americans? What are the Americans doing?'"

Four years later, Brandt, still mayor, met discreetly at a garden party with the Soviet ambassador to East Germany.

"Willy Brandt is talking to the Russians!" an amazed American official shouted to a group of newsmen.

When he became West Germany's foreign minister, Brandt continued to sound out the Russians on improving relations with the Soviet bloc. By the time he moved into the chancellery after a narrow electoral victory in 1969, Ostpolitik was firmly in his mind.

Since his first election, Brandt's government has negotiated friendship treaties with Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Romania and the Soviet Union and capped the structure with the treaty normalizing relations with East Germany.

Brandt visited the Soviet Union in 1970 and 1971 for talks with Leonid I. Brezhnev. Last May the Communist party chief went to Bonn, where he and Brandt signed a 10-year economic cooperation pact.

Brandt's policy of rapprochement also has affected West Berlin. East Germany eased restrictions on travel between the city and the West and allowed West Berliners to make more visits to East Berlin.

Many credit Ostpolitik with helping create an atmosphere favorable to the current Vienna conference on East-West troop reductions and Geneva's European Conference on Cooperation and Security.

Brandt in 1969 told a West Berlin gathering of writers, artists and entertainers that his dream was to remove the great masses of armaments from Germany and central Europe. He said:

"I may not live to see the day, but that is what we want."

Uncertainty After Election Of Peron's Wife

In the sober dawn after a night of celebrating Juan D. Peron's return to the presidency of Argentina, many an Argentinian must have awakened with a chill premonition. It would come not from the host of problems needing immediate solution. It would come from the fact that the country's new vice president is Peron's 40-year-old third wife, Isabel.

It would come from the fact that Peron will be 78 on Oct. 8, just four days before he takes over responsibility for leading a divided nation out of its political instability and economic stagnation, and that he is visited almost daily by a heart specialist.

Isabelita will be the first woman vice president in Latin American history. It is not the break with tradition that rouses the chill.

Rather it is the fear that in trusting his future once more to the man the Argentine military ousted 18 years ago as a corrupt dictator Argentinians may have consigned themselves to a new era of even greater uncertainty and even more violence than the one they are leaving.

Peron met Isabel, a cabaret dancer, in Panama during his wanderings after his ouster from office in 1955.

Whatever the aesthetic qualities of the dance it can offer little in the way of the practical experience needed of the politician, and yet Peron's union with Isabel and even his selection of her as his vice presidential running mate both were in the Peron pattern.

His second wife, Evita, was an actress who won the hearts of Argentina's "shirtless ones" who in turn gave Peron his political base. He once made her his running mate but in the last moment withdrew her name.

But Isabel is no Evita. Her candidacy roused wide uneasiness as testified by the defacement of hundreds of posters featuring Isabelita.

Among Evita's one-time followers, her memory is held in reverence which permits no competition.

Many among Peron's own followers believed until the last moment that he had placed his wife's name on the ballot merely to prevent internal jockeying within his fragmented Justicialista party and at the last moment would name a substitute.

Her candidacy and the fear that Peron might not live to complete his four-year term has aroused the anxiety not only of the anti-Peronists but also of youthful leftwing Peronists and especially of the army. The army permitted Peron's return only in a desperate, last ditch hope that he would place national unity above political partisanship.

Peron himself has disclosed that a recent virus ailment affected his heart and that doctors have told him he must avoid excitement.

Excitement may be as difficult to avoid as any attempt to conserve his energies.

Extremists of the Marxist left, responsible for scores of kidnappings in the last year, are seeking to win to their side the leftwing Peronist youth who are openly hostile to the unions providing Peron with his main strength.

The business community has been affected by Peron's known anti-Americanism, by uncertainty concerning the future of foreign investment and by fears for the safety of its members. Many have left the country.

Tables Turned On Columbus

ROME (UPI) — A Chippewa Indian named Lucky Eagle stepped from a streamlined jumbo jet, stuck his spear into the airport asphalt and hailed himself as the discover of Italy.

Lucky Eagle—the Chippewa name of Adam Nordwall, 44, of San Francisco—landed at Leonardo da Vinci International Airport Monday in tribal feathered headdress for his self-proclaimed role as a Columbus in reverse.

"I don't see anywhere that Italy has been discovered," Nordwall said. "If Christopher Columbus could claim he had discovered America even though Indians had been living there for thousands of years, I cannot see why I cannot do the same for Italy."

Nordwall, who teaches sociology at California State University in Hayward and operates a rat and cockroach extermination service on the side, was on his way to attend an international conference on World Futures Research in Rome.

(During May, Nordwall spoke on the Urbanization of the American Indian at the Second Eastern Regional Conference on the Native American, which was held at the State University College at New Paltz. At that time he said Indians had suffered a "cultural shock" when in 1953 the government moved many of them from reservations into cities. Presumably, the more urbanized Italians will at least not have to face that problem.)

Nordwall, who also has a television show back home called "The First Americans," said one of his first acts as the new Columbus would be to establish an agency like the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs.

He said a good title would be the Bureau of Italian Affairs and Gina Lollobrigida had a good chance of getting appointed to head it.

Military Fears Medical Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has launched a study of medical services for the military, prompting Defense Department fears that military doctors may be replaced by civilians.

Pentagon officials said they are also concerned that some 4.5 million military dependents and retirees who now receive almost free medical care may have to turn to the civilian community and pay full price for their treatment.

The study was ordered in July by Roy Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, and a copy of his memo outlining what the study should contain has been obtained by The Associated Press.

"The military medical care system traditionally has used military personnel and the facilities to care for servicemen and their dependents," Ash wrote, adding that free or nominally priced care of all kinds has come to be expected by the families of all 2.2 million members of the military services.

"Three factors—the all-volunteer force, the recent emphasis on improved management and the administration's commitment to an equitable health system for all Americans—suggests that these traditional assumptions should be reexamined," Ash said.

Ash set up a steering committee to study the military health apparatus which spends $2.4 billion annually on medical care.

In creating the steering committee, Ash said President Nixon "is concerned with reducing Department of Defense overhead and support costs while maintaining our overall force structure and military capability."

There is a shortage of military doctors which is expected to become critical over the next few years in the absence of the military draft.

"Civilianizing military medical services also has been proposed to offset the military doctor shortage," Ash said in his memo, without explaining how medical care would be provided in a wartime or other emergency situation.

Among the other alternatives proposed are:

- Cutting off dependents and retirees from the military health care system.
- Requiring military men and their families to pay for specialized services like eye care, dental or psychiatric treatment and some prescription drugs.
- Eliminate some services altogether.
- Make direct cash payments and allow servicemen and their families to seek out medical care on their own.
- Or adopt a medical insurance program run by the Pentagon, but similar to Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those young people who will receive many hard knocks early in life because of the stubbornness in this nature, but later learns much from them and the life becomes an industrious, happy, successful one after cooperation with others is learned. Any profession requiring neatness and exactness is fine here. Give as much education as your child will take. Be careful of the diet. "The Stars impel, they don't compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Five-Heart Response—Unhappy

By Oswald & James Jacoby

tion. He is playing old-fashioned simple Blackwood and finds out that his partner holds two aces and a king. He is very likely to bid a grand slam on the theory that if North holds three to the queen in either minor suit or the queen of spades, seven will make easily. In addition, if North's spades are headed by ace-king-jack, there will be a finesse for seven.

Now suppose he is playing the above modification. He knows that North is unhappy about his hand in general. He finds out that North holds the ace-king of spades and ace of hearts. Those are the only aces and kings that South is not looking right at.

Clearly North wouldn't be unhappy about his hand if his spade suit were headed by ace-king. Probably he wouldn't be unhappy if he had three to the queen in either suit.

Therefore, South decides to just bid six. Of course, he bids it in no-trump. He counts the same 12 sure tricks in either no-trump or hearts except that not only does no-trump count 10 points more but is safer. Nothing can be ruffed.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Dear in mind the modification of Blackwood in which five clubs shows zero or three aces; five diamonds one or four; five hearts two and unhappiness with the whole hand; five spades two aces plus happiness. Put yourself in South's position.

PASSING GLANCE — Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, wife of the former President, glances up at newly appointed Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger at dinner in New York City Tuesday. Speechwriter Faces Watergate Probers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Watergate committee was scheduled to open its probe into political dirty tricks today after hearing hints the Central Intelligence Agency may have engaged in undisclosed covert operations inside the United States. Moving on from its lengthy examination of the Watergate break-in, the committee planned to call presidential speechwriter Patrick J. Buchanan, the author of the White House memos said to have set the tone and basic strategy for President Nixon's 1972 campaign.

Convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr. ended two days of testimony Tuesday, stating that the Watergate operation was lawful and that the break-in team was betrayed by a double agent for the Democrats. Hunt, a former CIA agent, acknowledged undertaking a series of covert activities for the White House and for the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Committee sources said the state the CIA was not involved in other domestic activities. "No, sir, nor can I say the CIA has ever stayed out of domestic activity," Hunt replied. Hunt said he wanted to consult with his attorney on the national security aspects that might be involved in a more complete reply. Baker then excused him from answering. Hunt said he directed the Ellsberg break-in and had asked his former CIA associ-

'Hughes Wanted to Own President'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Howard Hughes gave $100,000 in cash to Bobo Rebozo, President Nixon, and $50,000 then Vice President Hubert Humphrey because he wanted to "own the President," a former top aide to the billionaire recluse has charged.

In court depositions made public Tuesday, Maheu said that two suitcases, each containing $50,000 in cash, had been given to Rebozo, Nixon's close friend. Richard Danner, a Hughes aide who is now general manager of the Hughes-owned Sands Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev., gave Rebozo the first suitcase at the Western White House in 1969, Maheu said.

Maheu said he and Danner gave Rebozo the second suitcase in 1970 at Key Biscayne, Fla., where Rebozo has a home. He said he gave Humphrey $50,000 in cash during the 1968 presidential campaign, handing it to Humphrey as the vice president sat in a limousine outside the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles.

Hughes also acted to give Sen. Robert Kennedy $25,000 that year, but Kennedy was assassinated before the money was delivered, so the cash went to Democratic National Committee Chairman Larry O'Brien instead, Maheu said. Maheu said Hughes wanted to "own the President, choose his successor, members of the Supreme Court, senators, congressmen and politicians at all levels."

Kissinger Ends Visit to United Nations

NEW YORK (UPI)—Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger concludes his initial visit to the United Nations today, a three-day round of talks during which he has courted antagonists, allies and neutralists in an intensified search for a global peace.

His schedule today called for diplomatic appointments from early morning until he leaves late tonight for Washington after attending a dinner to be given by U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

In between continuing sessions with visiting foreign ministers, Kissinger planned to go to the U.N. General Assembly at some point during the morning to listen to the address of West German Chancellor Willy Brandt. This is a courtesy he so far has extended to only one other delegation chief—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Kissinger's maiden venture into the arena of the United Nations since becoming secretary of state Saturday lasted only three days. However, he plans to return to New York late in the evening Oct. 1 and spend two more days here.

During that time he will confer with Chinese officials with whom he dealt during the 1972 Peking visit of President Nixon.

Kissinger told representatives of 13 Arab states and the Arab League who attended the luncheon he gave Tuesday that the United States was ready to assist in finding some solution to the continuing Middle East conflict but that it would be wrong to expect Washington "to bring forth miracles."

He said the United States realized that the Arab states had some grievances which would somehow be dealt with in order to modify the situation but he said any solution must be on a practical basis, with both sides working to ease tensions.

Kissinger was understood to be generally pleased with his reception here. However, he realized that he has been dealing so far in general terms and that his official acts will become considerably more difficult as he has to grapple on specific terms with exceedingly complex problems over a long period of time.

Senate to Vote On Troop Strength

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate votes today on an amendment to cut in half U.S. land-based troop strength abroad, a move Sen. Mike Mansfield calls "totally consistent with the Nixon doctrine."

Also today, public debate begins on an amendment seeking to slow development of the $13 billion Trident submarine program. The Trident proposal was discussed for more than two hours in closed session Tuesday.

Mansfield, the Democratic leader, said a reduction in the 500,000-man force is essential to lower the U.S. balance-of-payments deficit, fill domestic needs and end the policy of military confrontation with the Soviet Union.

The amendment would require that at least 62,500 troops based in foreign countries be pulled out by June 30 and that another 187,500 be withdrawn over the following two years.

Sea-based troops would be exempt from the cut. The president could decide from which countries the withdrawals were to be made; this would allow the president to delay until 1976 any change in the U.S. NATO force in Europe.

In addition to Europe, American forces are based in Thailand, Okinawa, Korea, Taiwan, the Philippines and Bermuda. Mansfield noted that U.S.-Soviet negotiations open Oct. 30 on mutual, balanced force reductions but said unilateral action by the United States could prompt a similar response from Russia.

The Nixon administration contends a unilateral troop withdrawal would doom negotiations with the Soviet Union. Mansfield tried twice in 1971 to require a reduction in the 300,000-man U.S. force in Europe, but lost on 61-36 and 54-39 votes.

An estimated 9,400 stations from central California to the Oregon state line had been closed.
